Futūḥ al-buldān

Futūḥ al-buldān is a well-known work of al-Balāḏūrī (d. 297/892), one of the most important Muslim historians who lived in the third century of hiǧra. The reference to classical Muslim historiography in the series’ title is coupled with the semantic spectrum of the Arabic root of the word fath. It refers to ‘military conquest,’ as well as to the ideas of to ‘open,’ ‘begin,’ and/or ‘reveal.’ Thus, the title of the series is a tribute to a great Muslim historian, but it also represents a synthesis of the ideological framework that underpins he series, which is to disclose pieces of history of Islamic societies.

The series aims at publishing original works with a multidisciplinary approach, in the field of Islamic history and culture, drawing connections between the past and the present. Futūḥ al-buldān will privilege case studies from areas and languages which are often – and questionably – regarded as ‘peripheral.’

A short note on a silsila of the Qādirīyya brotherhood in Ethiopia

Alessandro Gori
(University of Florence)

Introduction

In spite of a lack of exact and reliable information on the present distribution of the Islamic mystical brotherhoods in Ethiopia (and Eritrea), the Qādirīyya is the most widespread Islamic brotherhood, ṭarīqa, in the country.

In the present paper I carry out a brief research on a spiritual genealogy (silsila) of the Ethiopian Qādirīyya trying to shed light on the ways the ṭarīqa followed to spread in the different regions of Ethiopia, and to contribute to the reconstruction of the history of the group in that country.

1. The Qādirīyya in Ethiopia

‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ğilānī (m. 561/1166) is widely known and devotedly venerated in Ethiopia. His cenotaphs are scattered across the country, and mosques named after him are found in many different towns and villages. To mention only a few examples, in Harar, a famous maqâm of ‘Abd al-Qādir and his mother Umm al-Ḥayr Fāṭima (locally called Umma Koda) is located outside the wall of the old town (ḡugal), in the area known as Qurra-be limay just in front of the main bus-station. Eighteen kilometres east of Harar, in the Argobba land, a renowned sacred compound hosts the shrines of ‘Abd al-Qādir and Umma Koda with a house for the congregational meetings of the Qādiriyya brotherhood (ḥadra). Both locations are cherished holy sites to which the faithful of the Harar region flock in pilgrimage to seek the baraka of the saint and his mother. In Eritrea, a very famous shrine (mazār) of ‘Abd al-Qādir exists on the homonymous stretch of land north of Massawa and local traditions obviously claim that the saint actually died there. Emir ‘Abd al-Šakīr b. Yusuf of Harar (d. 1794) had a mosque called ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Ǧilānī built near the shrine of šayḥ Ḥusayn in the south Ethiopian region of Bale. In Asmara a modern mosque with a maqâm perpetuates the memory of the eponymous of the Qādiriyya. ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Ǧilānī is invoked in devotional poems and prayers.

2 Unfortunately, no exhaustive list of the cenotaphs of ‘Abd al-Qādir in Ethiopia (and in the Horn) is available. There is no need to underline the interest and the importance that such a list could provide to clarify the dimensions of the cult of this saint in Northeastern Africa.

\(^{13}\) The strict connection between the mystical brotherhoods and the Islamic traditional educational system in Ethiopia is well described by Hussein Ahmed, “Traditional Muslim Education in Wällo,” in Anatoly Andreevich Gromyko (ed.), Proceedings of the Ninth International Congress of Ethiopian Studies, vol. 3, Nauka, Moscow, 1988, pp. 94-106.

A number of Ethiopian Islamic renowned learned men were affiliated with the Qādiriyya (e.g. Ğamal al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Annī, d. 1882; ʿAlī b. ʿAlī al-alamsī, fl. first half of the 20th century) and contributed to enhance the influence and the prestige of the ṭarīqa.

Despite the apparent rooting of the brotherhood in the country, the history of the Qādiriyya in Ethiopia has never been investigated by scholars and is therefore almost completely unknown. The ways the ṭarīqa followed in its spread into the different cultural and ethnical landscapes of Islamic Ethiopia are so far only vaguely describable. The reciprocal relationships of the various centres of the brotherhood are not precisely identifiable and the biographies of the Ethiopian qādirī masters can only be sketched. First-hand sources on the mystical group and its literature (manāqīb, silsilas, handbooks of doctrine, litanies and devotional texts) are still to be located, collected and critically published.
It is often repeated in scholarly literature that the first introducer of the Qādiriyya in Ethiopia was Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-‘Aydrūs, the revered patron saint of Aden (d. 1508), member of the al-Saqqāf branch of the Ḥadrami Bā ‘Alawi sayyid, who allegedly brought the tariqa to Harar. However, no evidence for this assertion has ever been shown yet. The first inception of the brotherhood remains thus still enshrouded in obscurity.

The late Hussein Ahmed was the first researcher to concretely contribute to the enhancement of our knowledge of the Ethiopian Qādiriyaa. While carrying out some field work in his native region, he came to know a local silsila of the Qādiriyaa that sheds light on the spread of the brotherhood from Harar into Wällo in the 19th century.

The silsila published by Hussein Ahmed runs as follows:

Sayyid Musāfir – faqīh Hāşim – Ahmad b. Sāliḥ – faqīh Zubayr – šayḥ Muhammad Šāfī (d. 1814/15) – Muhammad b. faqīh Zubayr – šayḥ Ğamal al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Anī – Ahmad b. Ğādām (d. 1903) – Muḥammad Yasin (d. 1924); sayyid Ğibrālīhím (d. 1956).

According to Hussein Ahmed’s informants, sayyid Musāfir was of Yemeni origin and thus was a trait-d’union between the local Ethiopian Qādiriyaa and the broader brotherhood network. He initiated to the Qādiri wird “a certain faqīh Hāşim” of Harar who in his turn entrusted the tariqa to Ğādām b. Şāliḥ. The latter took the brother-

15 The personality of Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-‘Aydrūs is still little known and deserves more in-depth research. He is credited to have introduced the habit of drinking coffee into Arabia. His connection with the Qādiriyaa is still unclear as some sources point instead to his affiliation to the Šāhlīyya (Oscar Löfgren, s.v. “‘Aydarūs,” in Clifford E. Bosworth et al. (eds.), The Encyclopaedia of Islam, 2nd edition, Brill, Leiden 1960-2005).
16 On this figure see Hussein Ahmed, s.v. “Muḥammad Šāfī,” in EAE.
18 Interviewed by Hussein Ahmed, šayḥ Muḥammad Walle said that sayyid Musāfir came from a not well-specified “West” and that faqīh Hāşim received the qādiri wird also “from an unknown ‘ālim from Medina” (Hussein Ahmed, Islam in Nineteenth-Century, p. 69).

hood to Wållo where it took root in the entire region.

The spiritual genealogy collected by Hussein Ahmed provides us with at least two important pieces of information: 1) the Qādiriyya most probably arrived in Ethiopia from Yemen, although not through the intermediation of Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-‘Aydarūs, whose name appears nowhere; 2) the Qādiriyya came to Wållo through šayḥ Aḥmad b. Śāliḥ among whose pupils also figured the much revered saint and learned man sayyīd al-_BYTES[44] al-hāǧr Buṣrā b. Āy Muḥammad.

Hussein Ahmed’s informants were not able to give further details on the personalities of the three oldest šayḥs mentioned in the silsila, so they remain nothing more than simple names. However, it is possible to identify with certainty faqīḥ Hāšim with the Harari learned man and member of the Harari emir family Hāšim b. ‘Abd al-‘Azīz (d. 1765) who authored a much renowned Arabic collection of pious litanies and prayers in praise of the Prophet (called the Fatḥ al-Rahmānī [sic!]), a wīrd for the Qādiriyya brotherhood and a Harari poem, al-Muṣṭafā, known both in a shorter and a longer version.

2. Šayḥ Aḥmad b. Śāliḥ and his silsila

Very recently, new evidence on the silsila of the Wållo Qādiriyya has 20 For some introductory information on him see Ewald Wagner, s.v. “Hāšim b. ‘Abd al-‘Azīz,” in EAE. The affiliation of faqīḥ Hāšim to the Qādiriyya is proved by an unpublished silsila contained in the manuscript Hs. or. 10472 of the Staatsbibliothek in Berlin (see the description of the document in Ewald Wagner, Afrikanische Handschriften. Teil 2. Islamische Handschriften aus Äthiopien, “Verzeichnis der orientalischen Handschriften in Deutschland 24-2,” Steiner, Stuttgart 1997, pp. 10-11.

come into light. In Ramadan 1425 (Oct.-Nov. 2004)\(^\text{21}\) the Naḡāšt\(\text{ī}\) printing press, the main Islamic publishing house of the country based in Addis Ababa,\(^\text{22}\) published the Ḥīmām al-ʾaḡbīyāʾ bi-raʾsh ṣaṭṭra ṣāḥīḥ mīn ṭarāǧīm al-ʾulāmāʾ wa-ʾl-ʾawliyāʾ fī ʿumhūrīyyat ʿĪyūbīyā, a collection of short biographies of holy men written by the renowned Wāllo ṣayḥ Muḥammad Wale.\(^\text{23}\)

Among the saints whose manāqīb were published in the book there is also ṣayḥ Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ, trait d’union between the Harari and the Wāllo branches of the Qādirīyya. No factual detail about the life of ṣayḥ Ahmad b. Ṣāliḥ is recorded in the short biographical note of the Ḥīmām.\(^\text{24}\) The sources of the information given in the book are not revealed. The dates of birth and death of the holy man remain unknown and the data about his genealogy are not ascertained. The fact that someone calls Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ “Aḥmad Kubrā” irritates the author/collector who deems it as a manifestation of coarse ignorance of the basic principles of the Arabic language.

Among the many prodigies which are commonly attributed to ṣayḥ Aḥmad, Muḥammad Wale reports only a single karāma which he himself seems to consider unbelievable. It is said that Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ on his way to Yāḡğū where he was to give the iǧāza to faqīh Zubayr, made a detour to Rayya. There, he noticed a girl who was playing with some boys. He stopped her and announced that she would give birth to someone who would renew his ǧīk̄r: she was actually the mother-to-be of ṣayḥ Gamāl al-ʾDīn Muḥammad al-ʾAnnā. Besides the general skepticism of the author about karāmāt, in this specific tale \(^{21}\) This is the date given on page 2 of the book. In the short biography of the author however, it is said that the text was published just a few days before his death (Sep. 10\(^\text{th}\) 2005).

\(^{24}\) Muḥammad Wale, Ḥīmām al-ʾaḡbīyāʾ, pp. 137-140.
Muḥammad Wale stresses also a general theological inconsistency: it is highly questionable whether it is legitimate to give a sort of ḥaṣaṣṣa in absentia to someone who is not (yet) alive.\textsuperscript{25}

Notwithstanding its scanty amount of information, the section of the ḥaṣaṣṣa is very interesting because it records the complete ṣilsila of Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ. The spiritual genealogy connecting šayḥ Aḥmad back to ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ġilānī runs as follows:

The reliability of the ṣilsila linking the Ethiopian branch of the brotherhood to the wider Islamic world can hardly sustain critical analysis. Quite surprisingly, most of the names mentioned, from Abū Bakr ‘Abd al-Razzāq (one of the sons of ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ġilānī) down to ‘Alī al-Hāšimi, Šaraf al-Dīn and Baḥr al-Dīn Aḥmad, correspond to the physical and spiritual genealogy of the Āl al-Kilānī al-Ḥamawī, the descendants of ‘Abd al-Qādir in the Syrian town of Ḥamā.\textsuperscript{27}

In particular, the nasab of this šarīf group almost literally confirms the section of the Ethiopian ṣilsila/nasab: ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ġilānī –

al-sayyid Abū Bakr ‘Abd al-Razzāq – qādī al-quḍāt al-sayyid Nāṣir (called al-Nāṣr in the Syrian source) – al-şayḥ Abū al-Nāṣr al-sayyid Muhammad – al-şayḥ Žahīr al-Dīn al-sayyid Aḥmad – Sayf al-Dīn al-sayyid Yahyā. Sayf al-Dīn Yahyā (d. 734/1333-34) was the first member of the offspring of ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ğilānī to settle in Ḥamā in 685/1286-87 on his way back from the haqq (hence his nickname nazīl Ḥamā) and from him the whole Āl Kīlānī group originated. The names from Sayf al-Dīn Yahyā back to al-sayyid ‘Ālī al-Hāṣimī are not completely identical in the Syrian nasab and in the Ethiopian silsila but the relatively slight discrepancies between the two texts can be easily explained with some disruptions in the transmission.28 The only really missing person in the Syrian nasab is Ibrāhīm al-Qādir who, however, could be an avatar of Ibrāhīm b. Șaraf al-Dīn b. Aḥmad b. ‘Ālī al-Hāṣimī who appears in the nasab of șayḥ ‘Abd al-Òahmān al-Kīlānī, naqīb al-aṣrāf in Damascus (d. ca. 1172/1758-59).29

As for sayyid Musāfīr al-Mağribī, who should be the person who practically introduced the tariqa into Ethiopia, he lays in complete obscurity: one can only speculate on his nisba which often is used in Ethiopia to refer to individuals coming or originating from Sudan. It is of course theoretically conceivable that this sayyid Musāfīr al-Mağribī could have met a member of the Kīlānī family somewhere in the Near East or in the Arabian Peninsula and have been initiated to the Qādirī brotherhood by him. Such an event, however, would probably have been recorded in Ethiopian tradition with much emphasis. It is thus much more likely that sayyid Musāfīr al-Mağribī is nothing but a ghost name functioning to connect the Near-eastern silsila with Ethiopia.

The İqāz also contains a cursive mention of the line of Qādirī spiritual descendency initiated by șayḥ Aḥmad b. Şāliḥ. The silsila in this 29 How the Syrian nasab came to be known in Ethiopia so that Muḥammad Wale could insert it in his book as a silsila is not clear. A feedback from an Arabic written source is most likely but cannot be proven.

A short note on a silsila of the Qādiriyya case is:

This is once more the famous Anna-Dana silsila, already recorded by J. Spencer Trimingham and then studied by Hussei n Ahmed.31 From the al-Dānī al-Ṭānī, the Ethiopian Qādiriyya apparently managed to spread widely in every corner of Ethiopia. Among the most famous disciples of the “second” al-Dānī ʿṣayḥ, Muḥammad Wāle mentions:

al-ṣayḥ al-Šayyid b. al-ṣayyid ʿĪbrāhīm al-Ṭālī; ʿṣayḥ Abū al-Baṣṭ – ʿṣayḥ Məhmūd Kanz – ʿṣayḥ ʿṢāḥīḥ al-Dār ʿṣayḥ al-Karamī who was, in his turn, master of al-ḥāǧǧ Muḥammad Zayn al-Dānī (the third Dānī).32

This local Ethiopian section of the silsila thus includes the names of the main representatives of the Qādiriyya of Wāllo in the recent past and today. It provides the standard chain of spiritual descent for the whole region, highlighting the pivotal role played by the Anna-Dana connection.

This is the only Ethiopian Qādirī silsila known so far. Other silsilas based on different Qādirī centres in Wāllo and/or in Harar which, for sure, exist are still to be discovered. Only further research on the written local tradition of the tarīqa will hopefully allow us to make a more detailed assessment of the network of the Qādiriyya in the whole region.
