Futūḥ al-buldān is a well-known work of al-Balāḏurī (d. 297/892), one of the most important Muslim historians who lived in the third century of hijra. The reference to classical Muslim historiography in the series’ title is coupled with the semantic spectrum of the Arabic root of the word fath. It refers to ‘military conquest,’ as well as to the ideas of to ‘open,’ ‘begin,’ and/or ‘reveal.’ Thus, the title of the series is a tribute to a great Muslim historian, but it also represents a synthesis of the ideological framework that underpins the series, which is to disclose pieces of history of Islamic societies.

The series aims at publishing original works with a multidisciplinary approach, in the field of Islamic history and culture, drawing connections between the past and the present. Futūḥ al-buldān will privilege case studies from areas and languages which are often – and questionably – regarded as ‘peripheral.’

A short note on a silsila of the Qâdirîyya brotherhood in Ethiopia*

Alessandro Gori
(University of Florence)

Introduction

In spite of a lack of exact and reliable information on the present distribution of the Islamic mystical brotherhoods in Ethiopia (and Eritrea), the Qâdirîyya is the most widespread Islamic brotherhood, ṭarīqâ, in the country.

In the present paper I carry out a brief research on a spiritual genealogy (silsila) of the Ethiopian Qâdirîyya trying to shed light on the ways the ṭarīqa followed to spread in the different regions of Ethiopia, and to contribute to the reconstruction of the history of the group in that country.

1. The Qâdirîyya in Ethiopia

ʿAbd al-Qâdir al-Ǧilânî (m. 561/1166) is widely known and devotedly venerated in Ethiopia. His cenotaphs are scattered across the country, and mosques named after him are found in many different towns and

* The research on which this article is based was made possible thanks to the support of the Alexander von Humboldt Stiftung.

villages. To mention only a few examples, in Harar, a famous maqām of ‘Abd al-Qādir and his mother Umm al-Ḥayr Fāṭima (locally called Umma Koda) is located outside the wall of the old town (ḡugal), in the area known as Qurra-be limay just in front of the main bus-station. Eighteen kilometres east of Harar, in the Argobba land, a renowned sacred compound hosts the shrines of ‘Abd al-Qādir and Umma Koda with a house for the congregational meetings of the Ṭādiriyā brotherhood (ḥadra). Both locations are cherished holy sites to which the faithful of the Harar region flock in pilgrimage to seek the baraka of the saint and his mother. In Eritrea, a very famous shrine (mazār) of ‘Abd al-Qādir exists on the homonymous stretch of land north of Massawa and local traditions obviously claim that the saint actually died there. Emir ‘Abd al-Šakīr b. Yūsuf of Harar (d. 1794) had a mosque called ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Ǧilānī built near the shrine of šayḥ Ḥusayn in the south Ethiopian region of Bale.

‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ǧilānī is invoked in devotional poems and prayers

2 Unfortunately, no exhaustive list of the cenotaphs of ‘Abd al-Qādir in Ethiopia (and in the Horn) is available. There is no need to underline the interest and the importance that such a list could provide to clarify the dimensions of the cult of this saint in Northeastern Africa.

with the names of local Ethiopian holy men. The text collection recited during the mawlid ceremony in Harar contains a poem attributed to ‘Abd al-Qādir (Ṭuf bi-hālī sab‘an) and a long pious supplication to ask for his help (Yā quṭb yā rabbānī al-hayakal al-nūrānī ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Gīlānī). In many Ethiopian Muslim regions, famous Qādirī centres exist: Anna in Rayya Qobbo (Wällo), Dana in Yaggū (Wällo), Qatbare in Qabeena and Galamsoo (Gälämso) in Oromia are among the most celebrated headquarters of the brotherhood and host famous Islamic schools which attract scholars and students to teach and study not only mysticism but the whole syllabus of the Islamic traditional education.

A number of Ethiopian Islamic renowned learned men were affiliated with the Qādiriyya (e.g. Ġamāl al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Annī, d. 1882; Āḥmad b. Ādām al-Dānī, d. 1903; ‘Īsā b. Ḥāmza al-Qatbarī d. 1947, ‘Umur b. ‘Alī al-Ǧalamsī, fl. first half of the 20th century) and contributed to enhance the influence and the prestige of the ṣaḥīfa.

Despite the apparent rooting of the brotherhood in the country, the history of the Qādiriyya in Ethiopia has never been investigated by scholars and is therefore almost completely unknown. The ways the ṣaḥīfa followed in its spread into the different cultural and ethnical landscapes of Islamic Ethiopia are so far only vaguely describable. The reciprocal relationships of the various centres of the brotherhood are not precisely identifiable and the biographies of the Ethiopian qādirī masters can only be sketched. First-hand sources on the mystical group and its literature (manāqib, silsilas, handbooks of doctrine, litanies and devotional texts) are still to be located, collected and critically published.

It is often repeated in scholarly literature\(^\text{14}\) that the first introducer of the Qādiriyya in Ethiopia was Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-‘Aydrūs, the revered patron saint of Aden (d. 1508), member of the al-Saqqāf branch of the Ḥadrami Bā ‘Alawī sayyid, who allegedly brought the ṭariqa to Harar. However, no evidence for this assertion has ever been shown yet.\(^\text{15}\) The first inception of the brotherhood remains thus still enshrouded in obscurity.

The late Hussein Ahmed was the first researcher to concretely contribute to the enhancement of our knowledge of the Ethiopian Qādiriyya. While carrying out some field work in his native region, he came to know a local silsila of the Qādiriyya that sheds light on the spread of the brotherhood from Harar into Wällo in the 19th century.

The silsila published by Hussein Ahmed runs as follows:

According to Hussein Ahmed’s informants, sayyid Musāfir was of Yemeni origin\(^\text{18}\) and thus was a trait-d’union between the local Ethiopian Qādiriyya and the broader brotherhood network. He initiated the Qādiri wird “a certain faqīh Hāšim” of Harar who in his turn entrusted the ṭariqa to Ahmad b. Śaliḥ. The latter took the brother-

\(^{15}\) The personality of Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-‘Aydrūs is still little known and deserves more in-depth research. He is credited to have introduced the habit of drinking coffee into Arabia. His connection with the Qādiriyya is still unclear as some sources point instead to his affiliation to the Šālīyya (Oscar Löfgren, s.v. “Aydrūs,” in Clifford E. Bosworth et al. (eds.), The Encyclopaedia of Islam, 2nd edition, Brill, Leiden 1960-2005).

\(^{18}\) Interviewed by Hussein Ahmed, šayḥ Muhammad Wale said that sayyid Musāfir came from a not well-specified “West” and that faqīh Hāšim received the qādiri wird also “from an unknown ‘ālim from Medina” (Hussein Ahmed, Islam in Nineteenth-Century, p. 69).
A short note on a silsila of the Qādiriyya hood to Wällo where it took root in the entire region.

The spiritual genealogy collected by Hussein Ahmed provides us with at least two important pieces of information: 1) the Qādiriyya most probably arrived in Ethiopia from Yemen, although not through the intermediation of Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-‘Aydarūs, whose name appears nowhere; 2) the Qādiriyya came to Wällo through šayḥ Aḥmad b. Šāliḥ among whose pupils also figured the much revered saint and learned man sayyid al-Bā` al-hāqq Buṣra b. Āy Muḥammad.19

Hussein Ahmed’s informants were not able to give further details on the personalities of the three oldest šayḥs mentioned in the silsila, so they remain nothing more than simple names. However, it is possible to identify with certainty faqīh Hāšim with the Harari learned man and member of the Harari emir family Hāšim b. ‘Abd al-‘Azīz (d. 1765)20 who authored a much renowned Arabic collection of pious litanies and prayers in praise of the Prophet (called the Fatḥ al-Rahmānī [sic!]), a wird for the Qādiriyya brotherhood and a Harari poem, al-Muṣṭafā, known both in a shorter and a longer version.

2. Šayḥ Aḥmad b. Šāliḥ and his silsila

Very recently, new evidence on the silsila of the Wällo Qādiriyya has 20 For some introductory information on him see Ewald Wagner, s.v. “Hāšim b. ‘Abd al-‘Azīz,” in EAE. The affiliation of faqīh Hāšim to the Qādiriyya is proved by an unpublished silsila contained in the manuscript Hs. or. 10472 of the Staatsbibliothek in Berlin (see the description of the document in Ewald Wagner, Afrikanische Handschriften. Teil 2. Islamische Handschriften aus Äthiopien, “Verzeichnis der orientalischen Handschriften in Deutschland 24-2,” Steiner, Stuttgart 1997, pp. 10-11.

come into light. In Ramadan 1425 (Oct.-Nov. 2004)\textsuperscript{21} the Nağāši printing press, the main Islamic publishing house of the country based in Addis Ababa,\textsuperscript{22} published the İqâz himam al-ağbiyâ′ bi-rašq qaṭra min tarâǧîm al-′ulamâ′ wa-al-awliyâ′ fi ġumhûriyyat Ilyûbiyâ, a collection of short biographies of holy men written by the renowned Wâllo šayŷ Muḥammad Wale.\textsuperscript{23}

Among the saints whose manâqib were published in the book there is also šayŷ Aḥmad b. Šâliḥ, \textit{trait d’union} between the Harari and the Wâllo branches of the Qâdirîyya. No factual detail about the life of šayŷ Aḥmad b. Šâliḥ is recorded in the short biographical note of the İqâz.\textsuperscript{24} The sources of the information given in the book are not revealed. The dates of birth and death of the holy man remain unknown and the data about his genealogy are not ascertained. The fact that someone calls Aḥmad b. Šâliḥ “Aḥmad Kubrā” irritates the author/collector who deems it as a manifestation of coarse ignorance of the basic principles of the Arabic language.

Among the many prodigies which are commonly attributed to šayŷ Aḥmad, Muhammad Wale reports only a single karâma which he himself seems to consider unbelievable. It is said that Aḥmad b. Šâliḥ on his way to Ḷaqqū where he was to give the iğâza to faqiḥ Zubayr, made a detour to Rayya. There, he noticed a girl who was playing with some boys. He stopped her and announced that she would give birth to someone who would renew his ġîkr: she was actually the mother-to-be of šayŷ Gamîl al-Dîn Muḥammad al-Annî. Besides the general skepticism of the author about karâmât, in this specific tale

\begin{footnotes}
\item[21]This is the date given on page 2 of the book. In the short biography of the author however, it is said that the text was published just a few days before his death (Sep. 10\textsuperscript{th} 2005).
\end{footnotes}
Muḥammad Wale stresses also a general theological inconsistency: it is highly questionable whether it is legitimate to give a sort of iǧāza in absentia to someone who is not (yet) alive.\(^{25}\)

Notwithstanding its scanty amount of information, the section of the Iqāz is very interesting because it records the complete silsila of Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ. The spiritual genealogy connecting šayḥ Ḥaḍīth to the wider Islamic world can hardly sustain critical analysis. Quite surprisingly, most of the names mentioned, from Abū Bakr ʿAbd al-Razzāq (one of the sons of ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī) down to ʿAlī al-Ḥašimī, Šaraf al-Dīn and Baḥr al-Dīn Aḥmad, correspond to the physical and spiritual genealogy of the Āl al-Ḡilānī al-Ḥamawī, the descendants of ʿAbd al-Qādir in the Syrian town of Ḥamā.\(^{27}\)

In particular, the nasab of this šarīf group almost literally confirms the section of the Ethiopian silsila/nasab: ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī –

_al-sayyid_ Abū Bakr ‘Abd al-Razzāq – _ṣādiqa_ al-_qudāt_ al-_sayyid_ Nāṣir (called al-Naṣr in the Syrian source) – _al-ṣayḥ_ Abū al-Naṣr _al-sayyid_ Muhammad – _al-ṣayḥ_ Ẓähīr al-Dīn _al-sayyid_ Aḥmad – _Sayf_ al-Dīn _al-sayyid_ Yahiyyā. _Sayf_ al-Dīn Yahiyyā (d. 734/1333-34) was the first member of the _ṣaqq_ – _al-qudāt_ al-_sayyid_ Nāṣir family to settle in ʿĀmmā in 685/1286-87 on his way back from the _haqq_ (hence his nickname _nazil_ ʿĀmmā) and from him the whole ʿĀl Kīlānī group originated. The names from _Sayf_ al-Dīn Yahiyyā back to _al-sayyid_ ‘Alī al-Hāṣimī are not completely identical in the Syrian _nasab_ and in the Ethiopian _silsla_ but the relatively slight discrepancies between the two texts can be easily explained with some disruptions in the transmission.²⁸ The only really missing person in the Syrian _nasab_ is Ibrāhīm al-Qādirī who, however, could be an avatar of Ibrāhīm b. Ẓaraf al-Dīn b. Aḥmad b. ʿAlī al-Hāṣimī who appears in the _nasab_ of ʿAbd al-Rāḥmān al-Kīlānī, _naqīb_ al-_ašrāf_ in Damascus (d. ca. 1172/1758-59).²⁹

As for _sayyid_ Musāfir al-Mağribī, who should be the person who practically introduced the _tariqa_ into Ethiopia, he lays in complete obscurity: one can only speculate on his _nisba_ which often is used in Ethiopia to refer to individuals coming or originating from Sudan. It is of course theoretically conceivable that this _sayyid_ Musāfir al-Mağribī could have met a member of the Kīlānī family somewhere in the Near East or in the Arabian Peninsula and have been initiated to the _Qādirī_ brotherhood by him. Such an event, however, would probably have been recorded in Ethiopian tradition with much emphasis. It is thus much more likely that _sayyid_ Musāfir al-Mağribī is nothing but a ghost name functioning to connect the Near-eastern _silsilā_ with Ethiopia.

The _Īqāz_ also contains a cursive mention of the line of _Qādirī_ spiritual descendency initiated by ʿayḥ Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ. The _silsilā_ in this case is:

²⁹ How the Syrian _nasab_ came to be known in Ethiopia so that Muhammad Wale could insert it in his book as a _silsilā_ is not clear. A feedback from an Arabic written source is most likely but cannot be proven.
A short note on a silsila of the Qādiriyya

This is once more the famous Anna-Dana silsila, already recorded by J. Spencer Trimingham and then studied by Hussein Ahmed.\(^ {31}\) From the al-Danī al-Ṭānī, the Ethiopian Qādiriyya apparently managed to spread widely in every corner of Ethiopia. Among the most famous disciples of the “second” al-Danī ṣayḥ, Muḥammad Wale mentions:

al-ṣayḥ al-Sayyid b. al-sayyid ʿAbrāhīm al-Ṭālī; ṣayḥ Abū al-Baṣṭ – šayḥ Mahmūd Kanz – šayḥ Šahīd al-Dār ṣayḥ al-Karmānī who was, in his turn, master of al-ḥāǧǧ Muḥammad Zayn al-Danī (the third Danī).\(^ {32}\)

This local Ethiopian section of the silsila thus includes the names of the main representatives of the Qādiriyya of Wāllo in the recent past and today. It provides the standard chain of spiritual descent for the whole region, highlighting the pivotal role played by the Anna-Dana connection.

This is the only Ethiopian Qādirī silsila known so far. Other silsilas based on different Qādirī centres in Wāllo and/or in Harar which, for sure, exist are still to be discovered. Only further research on the written local tradition of the tarīqa will hopefully allow us to make a more detailed assessment of the network of the Qādiriyya in the whole region.
