_Futūḥ al-buldān_ is a well-known work of al-Balāḏurī (d. 297/892), one of the most important Muslim historians who lived in the third century of _hiğra_. The reference to classical Muslim historiography in the series’ title is coupled with the semantic spectrum of the Arabic root of the word _fath_. It refers to ‘military conquest,’ as well as to the ideas of to ‘open,’ ‘begin,’ and/or ‘reveal.’ Thus, the title of the series is a tribute to a great Muslim historian, but it also represents a synthesis of the ideological framework that underpins he series, which is to disclose pieces of history of Islamic societies. The series aims at publishing original works with a multidisciplinary approach, in the field of Islamic history and culture, drawing connections between the past and the present. _Futūḥ al-buldān_ will privilege case studies from areas and languages which are often – and questionably – regarded as ‘peripheral.’

A short note on a silsila of the Qâdiriyya brotherhood in Ethiopia

Alessandro Gori
(University of Florence)

Introduction

In spite of a lack of exact and reliable information on the present distribution of the Islamic mystical brotherhoods in Ethiopia (and Eritrea), the Qâdiriyya is the most widespread Islamic brotherhood, tarīqa, in the country.

In the present paper I carry out a brief research on a spiritual genealogy (silsila) of the Ethiopian Qâdiriyya trying to shed light on the ways the ṣīlah followed to spread in the different regions of Ethiopia, and to contribute to the reconstruction of the history of the group in that country.

1. The Qâdiriyya in Ethiopia

ʿAbd al-Qâdir al-Ǧilānī (m. 561/1166) is widely known and devotedly venerated in Ethiopia. His cenotaphs are scattered across the country, and mosques named after him are found in many different towns and

1 The Somali Qâdiriyya is, on the contrary, relatively well known (see Alessandro Gori, Studi sulla letteratura agiografica islamica somala in lingua araba, Dipartimento di Linguistica, Firenze 2003, in particular pp. 28-32).
To mention only a few examples, in Harar, a famous maqam of ‘Abd al-Qādir and his mother Umm al-Ḥayr Fāṭima (locally called Umma Koda) is located outside the wall of the old town (ḡugal), in the area known as Qurra-be limay just in front of the main bus-station. Eighteen kilometres east of Harar, in the Argobba land, a renowned sacred compound hosts the shrines of ‘Abd al-Qādir and Umma Koda with a house for the congregational meetings of the Qādīrīyya brotherhood (ḥadra). Both locations are cherished holy sites to which the faithful of the Harar region flock in pilgrimage to seek the baraka of the saint and his mother. In Eritrea, a very famous shrine (mazār) of ‘Abd al-Qādir exists on the homonymous stretch of land north of Massawa and local traditions obviously claim that the saint actually died there. Emir ‘Abd al-Šakur b. Yusuf of Harar (d. 1794) had a mosque called ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ǧilānī built near the shrine of šayh Ḥusayn in the south Ethiopian region of Bale. In Asmara a modern mosque with a maqam perpetuates the memory of the eponymous of the Qādīrīyya.

‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ǧilānī is invoked in devotional poems and prayers

2 Unfortunately, no exhaustive list of the cenotaphs of ‘Abd al-Qādir in Ethiopia (and in the Horn) is available. There is no need to underline the interest and the importance that such a list could provide to clarify the dimensions of the cult of this saint in Northeastern Africa.

with the names of local Ethiopian holy men. The text collection recited during the mawlid ceremony in Harar contains a poem attributed to 'Abd al-Qādir (Ṭuf bi-hālī sab'an) and a long pious supplication to ask for his help (Yā quṭb yā rabbānī al-hayakal al-nūrānī 'Abd al-Qādir al-Gilānī). In many Ethiopian Muslim regions, famous Qādirī centres exist: Anna in Rayya Qobbo (Wällo), Dana in Yaggū (Wällo), Qatbare in Qabeena and Galamssoo (Gälämso) in Oromia are among the most celebrated headquarters of the brotherhood and host famous Islamic schools which attract scholars and students to teach and study not only mysticism but the whole syllabus of the Islamic traditional education.

A number of Ethiopian Islamic renowned learned men were affiliated with the Qādiriyya (e.g. Ġamāl al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Annī, d. 1882; Ṭāḥbān al-Dānī, d. 1903; ‘Īsā b. Ḥamza al-Qatbarī d. 1947, ‘Umar b. Ġalamsī, fl. first half of the 20th century) and contributed to enhance the influence and the prestige of the ṣārīqa.

Despite the apparent rooting of the brotherhood in the country, the history of the Qādiriyya in Ethiopia has never been investigated by scholars and is therefore almost completely unknown. The ways the ṣārīqa followed in its spread into the different cultural and ethnical landscapes of Islamic Ethiopia are so far only vaguely describable. The reciprocal relationships of the various centres of the brotherhood are not precisely identifiable and the biographies of the Ethiopian qādirī masters can only be sketched. First-hand sources on the mystical group and its literature (manāqīb, silsīlas, handbooks of doctrine, litanies and devotional texts) are still to be located, collected and critically published.

It is often repeated in scholarly literature\textsuperscript{14} that the first introducer of the \textit{Qādiriya} in Ethiopia was Abū Bakr b. 'Abd Allāh al-'Aydrūs, the revered patron saint of Aden (d. 1508), member of the al-Saqqāf branch of the Ḥadrami Bā ‘Alawī sayyid, who allegedly brought the \textit{ṭarīqa} to Harar. However, no evidence for this assertion has ever been shown yet.\textsuperscript{15} The first inception of the brotherhood remains thus still enshrouded in obscurity.

The late Hussein Ahmed was the first researcher to concretely contribute to the enhancement of our knowledge of the Ethiopian \textit{Qādiriya}. While carrying out some field work in his native region, he came to know a local \textit{silsila} of the \textit{Qādiriya} that sheds light on the spread of the brotherhood from Harar into Wällo in the 19th century.

The \textit{silsila} published by Hussein Ahmed runs as follows:

\begin{center}
Sayyid Musāfīr – faqīḥ Hāšim – Ahmad b. Šāliḥ – faqīḥ Zubayr – šayḥ Muhammad Šāfi  (d. 1814/15)\textsuperscript{16} – Muhammad b. faqīḥ Zubayr – šayḥ Ġamal al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Annī – Ahmad b. Ādam (d. 1903) – Muḥammad Yasin (d. 1924); sayyid İbrāhīm (d. 1956).\textsuperscript{17}
\end{center}

According to Hussein Ahmed’s informants, \textit{sayyid} Musāfīr was of Yemeni origin\textsuperscript{18} and thus was a \textit{trait-d’union} between the local Ethiopian \textit{Qādiriya} and the broader brotherhood network. He initiated to the \textit{Qādiri} \textit{wīrd} “a certain faqīḥ Hāšim” of Harar who in his turn entrusted the \textit{ṭarīqa} to Ahmad b. Šāliḥ. The latter took the brother-

\textsuperscript{15} The personality of Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-'Aydrūs is still little known and deserves more in-depth research. He is credited to have introduced the habit of drinking coffee into Arabia. His connection with the \textit{Qādiriya} is still unclear as some sources point instead to his affiliation to the Šāḥiliyya (Oscar Löfgren, s.v. “'Aydrūs,” in Clifford E. Bosworth et al. (eds.), \textit{The Encyclopaedia of Islam}, 2\textsuperscript{nd} edition, Brill, Leiden 1960-2005).

\textsuperscript{18} Interviewed by Hussein Ahmed, šayḥ Muhammad Wale said that \textit{sayyid} Musāfīr came from a not well-specified “West” and that faqīḥ Hāšim received the \textit{qādiri} \textit{wīrd} also “from an unknown 'ālim from Medina” (Hussein Ahmed, \textit{Islam in Nineteenth-Century}, p. 69).
hood to Wällo where it took root in the entire region.

The spiritual genealogy collected by Hussein Ahmed provides us with at least two important pieces of information: 1) the Qādiriyya most probably arrived in Ethiopia from Yemen, although not through the intercession of Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-‘Aydarūs, whose name appears nowhere; 2) the Qādiriyya came to Wällo through šayḫ Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ among whose pupils also figured the much revered saint and learned man sayyid al-Bā‘ al-hāqq Bušra b. Āy Muḥammad.¹⁹

Hussein Ahmed’s informants were not able to give further details on the personalities of the three oldest šayḫs mentioned in the silsila, so they remain nothing more than simple names. However, it is possible to identify with certainty faqīḥ Hāšim with the Harari learned man and member of the Harari emir family Hāšim b. ‘Abd al-‘Azīz (d. 1765)²⁰ who authored a much renowned Arabic collection of pious litanies and prayers in praise of the Prophet (called the Fatḥ al-Raḥmānī [sic!]), a wirk for the Qādiriyya brotherhood and a Harari poem, al-Muṣṭafā, known both in a shorter and a longer version.

2. Šayḫ Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ and his silsila

Very recently, new evidence on the silsila of the Wällo Qādiriyya has come into light. In Ramadan 1425 (Oct.-Nov. 2004)\textsuperscript{21} the Nağāši printing press, the main Islamic publishing house of the country based in Addis Ababa,\textsuperscript{22} published the ʿIqāz himam al-ağbiyā’ bi-raṣḥ qaṭra min tarāǧim al-ʿulamā’ wa-al-awliyā’ fi ʿumhūriyyat ʿIyyūbiyā, a collection of short biographies of holy men written by the renowned Wällo šayḫ Muḥammad Wale.\textsuperscript{23}

Among the saints whose manāqib were published in the book there is also šayḫ Aḥmad b. Šāliḥ, trait d’union between the Harari and the Wällo branches of the Qādiriyya. No factual detail about the life of šayḫ Aḥmad b. Šāliḥ is recorded in the short biographical note of the ʿIqāz.\textsuperscript{24} The sources of the information given in the book are not revealed. The dates of birth and death of the holy man remain unknown and the data about his genealogy are not ascertained. The fact that someone calls Aḥmad b. Šāliḥ “Aḥmad Kubrā” irritates the author/collector who deems it as a manifestation of coarse ignorance of the basic principles of the Arabic language.

Among the many prodigies which are commonly attributed to šayḫ Aḥmad, Muhammad Wale reports only a single karāmā which he himself seems to consider unbelievable. It is said that Aḥmad b. Šāliḥ on his way to Ṭuḥr where he was to give the iǧāza to faqīḥ Zubayr, made a detour to Rayya. There, he noticed a girl who was playing with some boys. He stopped her and announced that she would give birth to someone who would renew his ǧiḳr: she was actually the mother-to-be of šayḫ Gamāl al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Annī. Besides the general skepticism of the author about karāmāt, in this specific tale \textsuperscript{21} This is the date given on page 2 of the book. In the short biography of the author however, it is said that the text was published just a few days before his death (Sep. 10th 2005).

\textsuperscript{24} Muḥammad Wale, ʿIqāz himam al-ağbiyā’, pp. 137-140.
Muḥammad Wale stresses also a general theological inconsistency: it is highly questionable whether it is legitimate to give a sort of īgāza in absentia to someone who is not (yet) alive.\textsuperscript{25}

Notwithstanding its scanty amount of information, the section of the Īqāz is very interesting because it records the complete silsila of Aḥmad b. Šāliḥ. The spiritual genealogy connecting šayḥ Aḥmad back to ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī runs as follows:

The reliability of the silsila linking the Ethiopian branch of the brotherhood to the wider Islamic world can hardly sustain critical analysis. Quite surprisingly, most of the names mentioned, from Abū Bakr ‘Abd al-Razzāq (one of the sons of ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī) down to ‘Alī al-Ḥāšimi, Šaraf al-Dīn and Baḥr al-Dīn Aḥmad, correspond to the physical and spiritual genealogy of the Āl al-Ḡilānī al-Ḥamawī, the descendants of ‘Abd al-Qādir in the Syrian town of Ḥamā.\textsuperscript{27}

In particular, the \textit{nasab} of this šarīf group almost literally confirms the section of the Ethiopian \textit{silsila}/\textit{nasab}: ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī –

The text is a concise but comprehensive research on the various branches of the descendants of the Prophet Muḥammad in the Near East.
al-sayyid Abū Bakr ‘Abd al-Razzāq – qādī al-quḍāt al-sayyid Nāṣir (called al-Naṣr in the Syrian source) – al-šayḫ Abū al-Naṣr al-sayyid Muhammad – al-šayḫ Žahīr al-Dīn al-sayyid Aḥmad – Sayf al-Dīn al-sayyid Yahyā. Sayf al-Dīn Yahyā (d. 734/1333-34) was the first member of the offspring of ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī to settle in Ḥamā in 685/1286-87 on his way back from the ḥaǧǧ (hence his nickname nazīl Ḥamā) and from him the whole Āl Kīlānī group originated. The names from Sayf al-Dīn Yahyā back to al-sayyid ‘Alī al-Hāšimī are not completely identical in the Syrian nasab and in the Ethiopian silsila but the relatively slight discrepancies between the two texts can be easily explained with some disruptions in the transmission.28 The only really missing person in the Syrian nasab is Ibrāhīm al-Qādirī who, however, could be an avatar of Ibrāhīm b. Șaraf al-Dīn b. Aḥmad b. ‘Alī al-Hāšimī who appears in the nasab of šayḫ ‘Abd al-Raḥmān al-Kīlānī, naqīb al-ašrāf in Damascus (d. ca. 1172/1758-59).29

As for sayyid Musāfīr al-Maqrīzī, who should be the person who practically introduced the tarīqa into Ethiopia, he lays in complete obscurity: one can only speculate on his nisba which often is used in Ethiopia to refer to individuals coming or originating from Sudan. It is of course theoretically conceivable that this sayyid Musāfīr al-Maqrīzī could have met a member of the Kīlānī family somewhere in the Near East or in the Arabian Peninsula and have been initiated to the Qādirī brotherhood by him. Such an event, however, would probably have been recorded in Ethiopian tradition with much emphasis. It is thus much more likely that sayyid Musāfīr al-Maqrīzī is nothing but a ghost name functioning to connect the Near-eastern silsila with Ethiopia.

The Īqāz also contains a cursive mention of the line of Qādirī spiritual descendency initiated by šayḫ Aḥmad b. Śalīḥ. The silsila in this case is:

29 How the Syrian nasab came to be known in Ethiopia so that Muhammad Wale could insert it in his book as a silsila is not clear. A feedback from an Arabic written source is most likely but cannot be proven.

This is once more the famous Anna-Dana silsila, already recorded by J. Spencer Trimingham and then studied by Hussei n Ahmed.31 From the al-Dānī al-Ṭānī, the Ethiopian Qādirīyya apparently managed to spread widely in every corner of Ethiopia. Among the most famous disciples of the “second” al-Dānī šayḥ, Muḥammad Wale mentions:

al-ṣayḥ al-Sayyid b. al-sayyid Ibrāhīm al-Ṭālī; šayḥ Abū al-Baṣṭ – šayḥ Mahmūd Kanz – šayḥ Šahīd al-Dār šayḥ al-Karamī who was, in his turn, master of al-ḥāḡḡ Muḥammad Zayn al-Dānī (the third Dānī).32

This local Ethiopian section of the silsila thus includes the names of the main representatives of the Qādirīyya of Wāllo in the recent past and today. It provides the standard chain of spiritual descent for the whole region, highlighting the pivotal role played by the Anna-Dana connection.

This is the only Ethiopian Qādirī silsila known so far. Other silsilas based on different Qādirī centres in Wāllo and/or in Harar which, for sure, exist are still to be discovered. Only further research on the written local tradition of the tarīqa will hopefully allow us to make a more detailed assessment of the network of the Qādirīyya in the whole region.
