_Futūḥ al-buldān_ is a well-known work of al-Balāḏurī (d. 297/892), one of the most important Muslim historians who lived in the third century of _hiǧra_. The reference to classical Muslim historiography in the series’ title is coupled with the semantic spectrum of the Arabic root of the word _fath_. It refers to ‘military conquest,’ as well as to the ideas of to ‘open,’ ‘begin,’ and/or ‘reveal.’ Thus, the title of the series is a tribute to a great Muslim historian, but it also represents a synthesis of the ideological framework that underpins the series, which is to disclose pieces of history of Islamic societies.

The series aims at publishing original works with a multidisciplinary approach, in the field of Islamic history and culture, drawing connections between the past and the present. _Futūḥ al-buldān_ will privilege case studies from areas and languages which are often – and questionably – regarded as ‘peripheral.’

A short note on a silsila of the Qādiriyya brotherhood in Ethiopia

Alessandro Gori
(University of Florence)

Introduction

In spite of a lack of exact and reliable information on the present distribution of the Islamic mystical brotherhoods in Ethiopia (and Eritrea),1 the Qādiriyya is the most widespread Islamic brotherhood, ṭarīqa, in the country.

In the present paper I carry out a brief research on a spiritual genealogy (silsila) of the Ethiopian Qādiriyya trying to shed light on the ways the ṭarīqa followed to spread in the different regions of Ethiopia, and to contribute to the reconstruction of the history of the group in that country.

1. The Qādiriyya in Ethiopia

ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Ǧilānī (m. 561/1166) is widely known and devotedly venerated in Ethiopia. His cenotaphs are scattered across the country, and mosques named after him are found in many different towns and villages.\(^2\) To mention only a few examples, in Harar, a famous maqâm of ‘Abd al-Qâdir and his mother Umm al-Ḥayr Fāṭima (locally called Umma Koda)\(^3\) is located outside the wall of the old town (ġugal), in the area known as Qurra-be limay just in front of the main bus-station.\(^4\) Eighteen kilometres east of Harar, in the Argobba land, a renowned sacred compound hosts the shrines of ‘Abd al-Qâdir and Umma Koda with a house for the congregational meetings of the Qâdirîyya brotherhood (ḥadra).\(^5\) Both locations are cherished holy sites to which the faithful of the Harar region flock in pilgrimage to seek the baraka of the saint and his mother. In Eritrea, a very famous shrine (mazâr) of ‘Abd al-Qâdir exists on the homonymous stretch of land north of Massawa and local traditions obviously claim that the saint actually died there.\(^6\) Emir ‘Abd al-Šakîr b. Yûsuf of Harar (d. 1794) had a mosque called ‘Abd al-Qâdir al-Ǧîlânî built near the shrine of šayḥ Ėusayn in the south Ethiopian region of Bale.\(^7\) In Asmara a modern mosque with a maqâm perpetuates the memory of the eponymous of the Qâdirîyya.\(^8\)

‘Abd al-Qâdir al-Ǧîlânî is invoked in devotional poems and prayers

\(^2\) Unfortunately, no exhaustive list of the cenotaphs of ‘Abd al-Qâdir in Ethiopia (and in the Horn) is available. There is no need to underline the interest and the importance that such a list could provide to clarify the dimensions of the cult of this saint in Northeastern Africa.

with the names of local Ethiopian holy men. \(^9\) The text collection recited during the mawlid ceremony in Harar contains a poem attributed to ‘Abd al-Qādir (Ṭuf bi-hālī sab’an)\(^10\) and a long pious supplication to ask for his help (Yā qūṭ yā rabbānī al-hayakal al-nūrānī ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ǧilānī). In many Ethiopian Muslim regions, famous Ḫādiri centres exist: Anna in Rayya Qobbo (Wällo), Dana in Yaggu (Wállo), Qatbare in Qabeena\(^11\) and Galamsso (Ǧālāmso) in Oromia\(^12\) are among the most celebrated headquarters of the brotherhood and host famous Islamic schools which attract scholars and students to teach and study not only mysticism but the whole syllabus of the Islamic traditional education.\(^13\)

A number of Ethiopian Islamic renowned learned men were affiliated with the Qādiriyya (e.g. Ǧamāl al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Annī, d. 1882; ʿĀbd al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Qatbarī d. 1947, ‘Īsā b. Ḥammza al-Qatbarī d. 1903; ‘Umar b. ʿAlī al-Galamsī, fl. first half of the 20th century) and contributed to enhance the influence and the prestige of the ˤarīqa.

Despite the apparent rooting of the brotherhood in the country, the history of the Qādiriyya in Ethiopia has never been investigated by scholars and is therefore almost completely unknown. The ways the ˤarīqa followed in its spread into the different cultural and ethnical landscapes of Islamic Ethiopia are so far only vaguely describable. The reciprocal relationships of the various centres of the brotherhood are not precisely identifiable and the biographies of the Ethiopian Ḫādiri masters can only be sketched. First-hand sources on the mystical group and its literature (manāqib, silsilas, handbooks of doctrine, litanies and devotional texts) are still to be located, collected and critically published.

\(^13\) The strict connection between the mystical brotherhoods and the Islamic traditional educational system in Ethiopia is well described by Hussein Ahmed, “Traditional Muslim Education in Wállo,” in Anatoly Andreevich Gromyko (ed.), Proceedings of the Ninth International Congress of Ethiopian Studies, vol. 3, Nauka, Moscow, 1988, pp. 94-106.
It is often repeated in scholarly literature that the first introducer of the Qādiriyā in Ethiopia was Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-‘Ayarūs, the revered patron saint of Aden (d. 1508), member of the al-Saqqāf branch of the Ḥadrami Bā ‘Alawi sayyid, who allegedly brought the tariqa to Harar. However, no evidence for this assertion has ever been shown yet. The first inception of the brotherhood remains thus still shrouded in obscurity.

The late Hussein Ahmed was the first researcher to concretely contribute to the enhancement of our knowledge of the Ethiopian Qādiriyā. While carrying out some field work in his native region, he came to know a local silsila of the Qādiriyā that sheds light on the spread of the brotherhood from Harar into Wällo in the 19th century.

The silsila published by Hussein Ahmed runs as follows:

Sayyid Musāfir – faqih Ḥāšim – Ahmad b. Ṣāliḥ – faqih Zubayr – šaykh Muhammad Šāfī (d. 1814/15)16 – Muhammad b. faqih Zubayr – šaykh Ġamāl al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Annī – Ahmad b. Ādam (d. 1903) – Muḥammad Yasin (d. 1924); sayyid Ibrāhīm (d. 1956).17

According to Hussein Ahmed’s informants, sayyid Musāfir was of Yemeni origin and thus was a trait-d’union between the local Ethiopian Qādiriyā and the broader brotherhood network. He initiated to the Qādiri wirad “a certain faqih Ḥāšim” of Harar who in his turn entrusted the tariqa to Ahmad b. Ṣāliḥ. The latter took the brother-

15 The personality of Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-‘Ayarūs is still little known and deserves more in-depth research. He is credited to have introduced the habit of drinking coffee into Arabia. His connection with the Qādiriyā is still unclear as some sources point instead to his affiliation to the Šāhīyya (Oscar Löfgren, s.v. “‘Ayarūs,” in Clifford E. Bosworth et al. (eds.), The Encyclopaedia of Islam, 2nd edition, Brill, Leiden 1960-2005).
16 On this figure see Hussein Ahmed, s.v. “Muḥammad Šāfī,” in EAE.
18 Interviewed by Hussein Ahmed, šayh Muhammad Wale said that sayyid Musāfir came from a not well-specified “West” and that faqih Ḥāšim received the qādiri wirad also “from an unknown ‘ālim from Medina” (Hussein Ahmed, Islam in Nineteenth-Century, p. 69).
hood to Wällo where it took root in the entire region.

The spiritual genealogy collected by Hussein Ahmed provides us with at least two important pieces of information: 1) the Qādiriyyya most probably arrived in Ethiopia from Yemen, although not through the intermeditation of Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-‘Aydarūs, whose name appears nowhere; 2) the Qādiriyyya came to Wällo through ṣayḥ Aḥmad b. Šāliḥ among whose pupils also figured the much revered saint and learned man sayyid al-Ḥāʾim Buṣra b. ʿĀy Muḥammad.19

Hussein Ahmed’s informants were not able to give further details on the personalities of the three oldest ṣayḥs mentioned in the silsila, so they remain nothing more than simple names. However, it is possible to identify with certainty faqīḥ Ḥāʾim with the Harari learned man and member of the Harari emir family Ḥāʾim b. ʿĀbd al-ʿAzīz (d. 1765)20 who authored a much renowned Arabic collection of pious litanies and prayers in praise of the Prophet (called the Fatḥ al-Raḥmānī [sic!]), a ṭird for the Qādiriyyya brotherhood and a Harari poem, al-Muṣṭaḥā, known both in a shorter and a longer version.

2. Ṣayḥ Aḥmad b. Šāliḥ and his silsila

Very recently, new evidence on the silsila of the Wällo Qādiriyyya has 20 For some introductory information on him see Ewald Wagner, s.v. “Ḥāʾim b. ʿĀbd al-ʿAzīz,” in EAE. The affiliation of faqīḥ Ḥāʾim to the Qādiriyyya is proved by an unpublished silsila contained in the manuscript Hs. or. 10472 of the Staatsbibliothek in Berlin (see the description of the document in Ewald Wagner, Afrikanische Handschriften. Teil 2. Islamische Handschriften aus Äthiopien, “Verzeichnis der orientalischen Handschriften in Deutschland 24-2,” Steiner, Stuttgart 1997, pp. 10-11.

come into light. In Ramadan 1425 (Oct.-Nov. 2004)\textsuperscript{21} the Nağāši printing press, the main Islamic publishing house of the country based in Addis Ababa,\textsuperscript{22} published the \textit{Īqāz himam al-ağhiyā’ bi-raṣḥ qaṭra min tarāqīm al-’ulamā’ wa-al-awliyā’} fi ḡumhūriyyat Īyūbiyā, a collection of short biographies of holy men written by the renowned Wāllo šayḥ Muḥammad Wale.\textsuperscript{23}

Among the saints whose \textit{manāqib} were published in the book there is also šayḥ Aḥmad b. Sāliḥ, \textit{trait d’union} between the Harari and the Wāllo branches of the Qādiriya. No factual detail about the life of šayḥ Aḥmad b. Sāliḥ is recorded in the short biographical note of the \textit{Īqāz}.\textsuperscript{24} The sources of the information given in the book are not revealed. The dates of birth and death of the holy man remain unknown and the data about his genealogy are not ascertained. The fact that someone calls Aḥmad b. Sāliḥ “Aḥmad Kubrā” irritates the author/collector who deems it as a manifestation of coarse ignorance of the basic principles of the Arabic language.

Among the many prodigies which are commonly attributed to šayḥ Aḥmad, Muhammad Wale reports only a single \textit{karāma} which he himself seems to consider unbelievable. It is said that Aḥmad b. Sāliḥ on his way to Yəğğu where he was to give the \textit{iğāza} to faqīḥ Zubayr, made a detour to Rayya. There, he noticed a girl who was playing with some boys. He stopped her and announced that she would give birth to someone who would renew his \textit{ḏikr}: she was actually the mother-to-be of šayḥ Gamāl al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Annī. Besides the general skepticism of the author about \textit{karāmāt}, in this specific tale

\textsuperscript{21} This is the date given on page 2 of the book. In the short biography of the author however, it is said that the text was published just a few days before his death (Sep. 10\textsuperscript{th} 2005).

\textsuperscript{24} Muḥammad Wale, \textit{Īqāz himam al-ağhiyā’}, pp. 137-140.
Muhammad Wale stresses also a general theological inconsistency: it is highly questionable whether it is legitimate to give a sort of iǧāza in absentia to someone who is not (yet) alive.

Notwithstanding its scanty amount of information, the section of the ʿIqāz is very interesting because it records the complete silsila of Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ. The spiritual genealogy connecting ʿayḥ Aḥmad back to ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Ǧīlānī runs as follows:

The reliability of the silsila linking the Ethiopian branch of the brotherhood to the wider Islamic world can hardly sustain critical analysis. Quite surprisingly, most of the names mentioned, from Abū Bakr ʿAbd al-Razzāq (one of the sons of ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Ǧīlānī) down to ʿAlī al-Ḥāšimī, Šaraf al-Dīn and Baḥr al-Dīn Aḥmad, correspond to the physical and spiritual genealogy of the Āl al-Ǧīlānī al-Ḥamawī, the descendants of ʿAbd al-Qādir in the Syrian town of Ḥamā.

In particular, the nasab of this šarīf group almost literally confirms the section of the Ethiopian silsila/nasab: ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Ǧīlānī –

al-sayyid Abū Bakr ‘Abd al-Razzāq – qādī al-quḍāt al-sayyid Nāṣir (called al-Naṣr in the Syrian source) – al-šayḥ Abū al-Naṣr al-sayyid Muhammad – al-šayḥ Zāhīr al-Dīn al-sayyid Aḥmad – Sayf al-Dīn al-sayyid Yahyā. Sayf al-Dīn Yahyā (d. 734/1333-34) was the first member of the offspring of ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ǧilānī to settle in Ḥamā in 685/1286-87 on his way back from the ḥaḡg (hence his nickname nazīl Ḥamā) and from him the whole Āl Kilānī group originated. The names from Sayf al-Dīn Yahyā back to al-sayyid ‘Alī al-Hāšimī are not completely identical in the Syrian nasab and in the Ethiopian silsila but the relatively slight discrepancies between the two texts can be easily explained with some disruptions in the transmission. 28 The only really missing person in the Syrian nasab is Ibrāhīm al-Qādir who, however, could be an avatar of Ibrāhīm b. Šaraf al-Dīn b. Aḥmad b. ‘Alī al-Hāšimī who appears in the nasab of šayḥ ‘Abd al-Raḥmān al-Kīlānī, naqīḥ al-ašrāf in Damascus (d. ca. 1172/1758-59). 29

As for sayyid Musāfir al-Maqrīzī, who should be the person who practically introduced the tarīqa into Ethiopia, he lays in complete obscurity: one can only speculate on his nisba which often is used in Ethiopia to refer to individuals coming or originating from Sudan. It is of course theoretically conceivable that this sayyid Musāfir al-Maqrīzī could have met a member of the Kilānī family somewhere in the Near East or in the Arabian Peninsula and have been initiated to the Qādirī brotherhood by him. Such an event, however, would probably have been recorded in Ethiopian tradition with much emphasis. It is thus much more likely that sayyid Musāfir al-Maqrīzī is nothing but a ghost name functioning to connect the Near-eastern silsila with Ethiopia.

The Īqāz also contains a cursive mention of the line of Qādirī spiritual descendency initiated by šayḥ Aḥmad b. Šāliḥ. The silsila in this 29 How the Syrian nasab came to be known in Ethiopia so that Muḥammad Wale could insert it in his book as a silsila is not clear. A feedback from an Arabic written source is most likely but cannot be proven.

case is:

This is once more the famous Anna-Dana silsila, already recorded by J. Spencer Trimingham and then studied by Hussein Ahmed.31 From the al-Danī al-Ṭānī, the Ethiopian Ḍirīyya apparently managed to spread widely in every corner of Ethiopia. Among the most famous disciples of the “second” al-Danī ṣayḥ, Muḥammad Wale mentions:

al-ṣayḥ al-Sayyid b. al-sayyid Ibrāhīm al-Ṭālī; ṣayḥ Abū al-Baṣṭ – ṣayḥ Mahmūd Kanz – ṣayḥ Șahīd al-Dār ṣayḥ al-Karamī who was, in his turn, master of al-ḥāǧǧ Muḥammad Zayn al-Danī (the third Danī).32

This local Ethiopian section of the silsila thus includes the names of the main representatives of the Ḍirīyya of Wállo in the recent past and today. It provides the standard chain of spiritual descent for the whole region, highlighting the pivotal role played by the Anna-Dana connection.

This is the only Ethiopian Ḍirī silsila known so far. Other silsilas based on different Ḍirī centers in Wállo and/or in Harar which, for sure, exist are still to be discovered. Only further research on the written local tradition of the ṭarīqa will hopefully allow us to make a more detailed assessment of the network of the Ḍirīyya in the whole region.
