Futūḥ al-buldān is a well-known work of al-Balāḏurī (d. 297/892), one of the most important Muslim historians who lived in the third century of hīḍra. The reference to classical Muslim historiography in the series’ title is coupled with the semantic spectrum of the Arabic root of the word fath. It refers to ‘military conquest,’ as well as to the ideas of to ‘open,’ ‘begin,’ and/or ‘reveal.’ Thus, the title of the series is a tribute to a great Muslim historian, but it also represents a synthesis of the ideological framework that underpins the series, which is to disclose pieces of history of Islamic societies.

The series aims at publishing original works with a multidisciplinary approach, in the field of Islamic history and culture, drawing connections between the past and the present. Futūḥ al-buldān will privilege case studies from areas and languages which are often – and questionably – regarded as ‘peripheral.’

A short note on a silsila of the Qādiriyya brotherhood in Ethiopia

Alessandro Gori
(University of Florence)

Introduction

In spite of a lack of exact and reliable information on the present distribution of the Islamic mystical brotherhoods in Ethiopia (and Eritrea), the Qādiriyya is the most widespread Islamic brotherhood, ṭarīqa, in the country.

In the present paper I carry out a brief research on a spiritual genealogy (silsila) of the Ethiopian Qādiriyya trying to shed light on the ways the ṭarīqa followed to spread in the different regions of Ethiopia, and to contribute to the reconstruction of the history of the group in that country.

1. The Qādiriyya in Ethiopia

ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Ǧilānī (m. 561/1166) is widely known and devotedly venerated in Ethiopia. His cenotaphs are scattered across the country, and mosques named after him are found in many different towns and villages.\textsuperscript{2} To mention only a few examples, in Harar, a famous \textit{maqām} of ʿAbd al-Qādir and his mother Umm al-Ḥayr Fāṭima (locally called Umma Koda)\textsuperscript{3} is located outside the wall of the old town (ḡūgal), in the area known as \textit{Qurra-be limay} just in front of the main bus-station.\textsuperscript{4} Eighteen kilometres east of Harar, in the Argobba land, a renowned sacred compound hosts the shrines of ʿAbd al-Qādir and Umma Koda with a house for the congregational meetings of the \textit{Qādiriyā} brotherhood (ḥadra).\textsuperscript{5} Both locations are cherished holy sites to which the faithful of the Harar region flock in pilgrimage to seek the \textit{baraka} of the saint and his mother. In Eritrea, a very famous shrine (\textit{mazār}) of ʿAbd al-Qādir exists on the homonymous stretch of land north of Massawa and local traditions obviously claim that the saint actually died there.\textsuperscript{6} Emir ʿAbd al-Šakūr b. Yūsuf of Harar (d. 1794) had a mosque called ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī built near the shrine of ṣayḥ Ḣusayn in the south Ethiopian region of Bale.\textsuperscript{7} In Asmara a modern mosque with a \textit{maqām} perpetuates the memory of the eponymous of the \textit{Qādiriyā}.\textsuperscript{8}

ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī is invoked in devotional poems and prayers

\textsuperscript{2} Unfortunately, no exhaustive list of the cenotaphs of ʿAbd al-Qādir in Ethiopia (and in the Horn) is available. There is no need to underline the interest and the importance that such a list could provide to clarify the dimensions of the cult of this saint in Northeastern Africa.

with the names of local Ethiopian holy men.\(^9\) The text collection recited during the \textit{mawlid} ceremony in Harar contains a poem attributed to `Abd al-Qādir (\textit{Tuf bi-ḥallī sabʿan})\(^10\) and a long pious supplication to ask for his help (\textit{Yā quṭb yā rabbānī al-hayakal al-nūrānī `Abd al-Qādir al-Ǧīlānī}). In many Ethiopian Muslim regions, famous Qādirī centres exist: Anna in Rayya Qobbo (Wällo), Dana in Yaggu (Wállo), Qatbare in Qabeena\(^11\) and Galamssoo (Gälämso) in Oromia\(^12\) are among the most celebrated headquarters of the brotherhood and host famous Islamic schools which attract scholars and students to teach and study not only mysticism but the whole syllabus of the Islamic traditional education.\(^13\)

A number of Ethiopian Islamic renowned learned men were affiliated with the \textit{Qādiriyya} (e.g. Ġamāl al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Annī, d. 1882; Ahmad b. Ādam al-Dānī, d. 1903; ‘Īsā b. Ḥamza al-Qatbarī d. 1947, ‘Umar b. ‘Ali al-Ǧalamsī, fl. first half of the 20th century) and contributed to enhance the influence and the prestige of the \textit{ṭarīqa}.

Despite the apparent rooting of the brotherhood in the country, the history of the \textit{Qādiriyya} in Ethiopia has never been investigated by scholars and is therefore almost completely unknown. The ways the \textit{ṭarīqa} followed in its spread into the different cultural and ethnical landscapes of Islamic Ethiopia are so far only vaguely describable. The reciprocal relationships of the various centres of the brotherhood are not precisely identifiable and the biographies of the Ethiopian qādirī masters can only be sketched. First-hand sources on the mystical group and its literature (\textit{manāqib}, \textit{silṣilas}, handbooks of doctrine, litanies and devotional texts) are still to be located, collected and critically published.

It is often repeated in scholarly literature\(^{14}\) that the first introducer of the \textit{Qādiriyyya} in Ethiopia was Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-‘Aydrūs, the revered patron saint of Aden (d. 1508), member of the al-Saqqāf branch of the Hadrami Bā ‘Alawī \textit{sayyid}, who allegedly brought the \textit{tārīqa} to Harar. However, no evidence for this assertion has ever been shown yet.\(^{15}\) The first inception of the brotherhood remains thus still enshrouded in obscurity.

The late Hussein Ahmed was the first researcher to concretely contribute to the enhancement of our knowledge of the Ethiopian \textit{Qādiriyyya}. While carrying out some field work in his native region, he came to know a local \textit{silsila} of the \textit{Qādiriyyya} that sheds light on the spread of the brotherhood from Harar into Wällo in the 19th century.

The \textit{silsila} published by Hussein Ahmed runs as follows:

\begin{verbatim}
Sayyid Musāfīr – faqīh Hášīm – Ahmad b. Šālih – faqīh Zubayr – šayh Muhammad Šāfī (d. 1814/15)\(^{16}\) – Muhammad b. faqīh Zubayr – šayh Ġamal al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Anni – Ahmad b. Ādam (d. 1903) – Muḥammad Yasin (d. 1924); sayyid Ibrāhīm (d. 1956).\(^{17}\)
\end{verbatim}

According to Hussein Ahmed’s informants, \textit{sayyid} Musāfīr was of Yemeni origin\(^{18}\) and thus was a \textit{trait-d’union} between the local Ethiopian \textit{Qādiriyyya} and the broader brotherhood network. He initiated to the \textit{Qādiri} \textit{wīrīd} “a certain faqīh Hášīm” of Harar who in his turn entrusted the \textit{tārīqa} to Ahmad b. Šālih. The latter took the brother-

\(^{15}\) The personality of Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-‘Aydrūs is still little known and deserves more in-depth research. He is credited to have introduced the habit of drinking coffee into Arabia. His connection with the \textit{Qādiriyyya} is still unclear as some sources point instead to his affiliation to the \textit{Ṣaḥḥiyyya} (Oscar Löfgren, s.v. “‘Aydrūs,” in Clifford E. Bosworth et al. (eds.), \textit{The Encyclopaedia of Islam}, 2\textsuperscript{nd} edition, Brill, Leiden 1960-2005).

\(^{16}\) On this figure see Hussein Ahmed, s.v. “Muḥammad Šāfī,” in \textit{EAE}.

\(^{18}\) Interviewed by Hussein Ahmed, šayh Muhammad Wale said that \textit{sayyid} Musāfīr came from a not well-specified “West” and that faqīh Hášīm received the \textit{qādiri} \textit{wīrīd} also “from an unknown ‘ālim from Medina” (Hussein Ahmed, \textit{Islam in Nineteenth-Century}, p. 69).
hood to Wällo where it took root in the entire region.

The spiritual genealogy collected by Hussein Ahmed provides us with at least two important pieces of information: 1) the Qādirīyya most probably arrived in Ethiopia from Yemen, although not through the intermediation of Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-‘Aydarūs, whose name appears nowhere; 2) the Qādirīyya came to Wällo through šayḫ Aḥmad b. Śāliḥ among whose pupils also figured the much revered saint and learned man sayyid al-Bā’ al-hāğg Buṣrā b. Āy Muḥammad.\(^1\)

Hussein Ahmed’s informants were not able to give further details on the personalities of the three oldest šayḫs mentioned in the silsila, so they remain nothing more than simple names. However, it is possible to identify with certainty faqīh Hāṣim with the Harari learned man and member of the Harari emir family Hāṣim b. ‘Abd al-‘Azīz (d. 1765)\(^2\) who authored a much renowned Arabic collection of pious litanies and prayers in praise of the Prophet (called the Fath al-Raḥmānī [sic!]), a ṭird for the Qādirīyya brotherhood and a Harari poem, al-Muṣṭafā, known both in a shorter and a longer version.

2. Šayḫ Aḥmad b. Śāliḥ and his silsila

Very recently, new evidence on the silsila of the Wällo Qādirīyya has

\(^1\) On this famous holy man of Wällo see Eloi Ficquet, s.v. “Buṣrā āy Muḥammad,” in EAE; Hussein Ahmed, “Al-Hajj Bushra Ay Muhammad: Muslim reformer, scholar and saint of nineteenth-century Wällo, Ethiopina,” in Bertrand Hirsch – Manfred Kropp (eds., éds., Hrsg.), Saints, Biographies and History in Africa – Saints, biographies et histories en Afrique – Heilige, Biographien und Geschichte in Afrika = Nordostafrikanisch / Westasiatische Studien 5, Peter Lang – Europäischer Verlag der Wissenschaft, Frankfurt am Main-Berlin – Bern – Bruxelles – New York – Oxford – Wien 2003, pp. 175-190. According to the sources, it seems that šayḫ Buṣrā had been initiated not only to the Qādirīyya but to several different brotherhoods. The phenomenon of the multiple affiliations to the Islamic brotherhoods in Ethiopia has not been studied at all.

\(^2\) For some introductory information on him see Ewald Wagner, s.v. “Haṣim b. ‘Abd al-‘Azīz,” in EAE. The affiliation of faqīh Haṣim to the Qādirīyya is proved by an unpublished silsila contained in the manuscript Hs. or. 10472 of the Staatsbibliothek in Berlin (see the description of the document in Ewald Wagner, Afrikanische Handschriften. Teil 2. Islamische Handschriften aus Äthiopien, “Verzeichnis der orientalischen Handschriften in Deutschland 24-2,” Steiner, Stuttgart 1997, pp. 10-11.
come into light. In Ramadan 1425 (Oct.-Nov. 2004)\textsuperscript{21} the Nağāš printing press, the main Islamic publishing house of the country based in Addis Ababa,\textsuperscript{22} published the ʿIqāz himam al-aḥbiyāʾ bi-raṣḥ qaṭrā min tārāḡīm al-ʿulamāʾ wa-al-awliyāʾ fī ʿumhūriyyat ʿĪyūbiyā, a collection of short biographies of holy men written by the renowned Wällō šayḫ Muḥammad Wale.\textsuperscript{23}

Among the saints whose manāqib were published in the book there is also šayḫ Āḥmad b. Šālīḥ, trait d’union between the Harari and the Wällō branches of the Qādirīyya. No factual detail about the life of šayḫ Āḥmad b. Šālīḥ is recorded in the short biographical note of the ʿIqāz.\textsuperscript{24} The sources of the information given in the book are not revealed. The dates of birth and death of the holy man remain unknown and the data about his genealogy are not ascertained. The fact that someone calls Āḥmad b. Šālīḥ “Āḥmad Kubrā” irritates the author/collector who deems it as a manifestation of coarse ignorance of the basic principles of the Arabic language.

Among the many prodigies which are commonly attributed to šayḫ Āḥmad, Muhammad Wale reports only a single karāma which he himself seems to consider unbelievable. It is said that Āḥmad b. Šālīḥ on his way to Yāḡgu where he was to give the iğāza to faqīḥ Zubayr, made a detour to Rayya. There, he noticed a girl who was playing with some boys. He stopped her and announced that she would give birth to someone who would renew his ġikr: she was actually the mother-to-be of šayḫ Gamāl al-Dīn Muḥammad al-ʾAynī. Besides the general skepticism of the author about karāmāt, in this specific tale \textsuperscript{21} This is the date given on page 2 of the book. In the short biography of the author however, it is said that the text was published just a few days before his death (Sep. 10\textsuperscript{th} 2005).

\textsuperscript{24} Muhammad Wale, ʿIqāz himam al-aḥbiyāʾ’, pp. 137-140.
Muḥammad Wale stresses also a general theological inconsistency: it is highly questionable whether it is legitimate to give a sort of ḩiḏa in absentia to someone who is not (yet) alive.²⁵

Notwithstanding its scanty amount of information, the section of the ḩiḏa is very interesting because it records the complete silsila of Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ. The spiritual genealogy connecting šayḥ Aḥmad back to ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī runs as follows:

\begin{align*}
\text{Al-sayyid} & \quad \text{ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī} \quad \text{al-sayyid} \quad \text{Abū Bakr} \quad \text{ʿAbd al-Razzāq} \quad \text{al-qudāt} \quad \text{al-sayyid} \quad \text{Nāṣīr} \quad \text{al-ḵayy Abū al-Naṣr al-sayyid Muḥammad} \quad \text{al-ḵayy Zāhir al-Dīn} \quad \text{al-sayyid} \quad \text{Aḥmad} \quad \text{Sayf al-Dīn} \quad \text{al-sayyid} \quad \text{Yaḥyā} \quad \text{al-sayyid} \quad \text{Nağm al-Dīn Muḥammad} \quad \text{ʿAlī} \quad \text{al-sayyid} \quad \text{Nūr al-Dīn} \quad \text{Ḥusayn} \quad \text{al-sayyid} \quad \text{Ṣaraf al-Dīn Aḥmad al-Qādirī} \quad \text{Ṣāḥib al-Dīn al-sayyid} \quad \text{Aḥmad al-Qādirī} \quad \text{al-sayyid} \quad \text{ʿAli} \quad \text{al-Ḥāšimī} \quad \text{al-sayyid} \quad \text{Ṣaraf al-Dīn} \quad \text{Bāḥr al-Dīn} \quad \text{sayyid} \quad \text{Aḥmad al-Qādirī} \quad \text{sayyid} \quad \text{Ibrāhīm al-Qādirī} \quad \text{al-sayyid} \quad \text{Musāfīr al-Maqrīzī} \quad \text{Abū} \quad \text{ʿAbd Allāh} \quad \text{Ḥāšim} \quad \text{b.} \quad \text{ʿAbd al-ʿAzīz al-Harārī \quad Aḥmad b.} \quad \text{Ṣāliḥ}. \\

The reliability of the silsila linking the Ethiopian branch of the brotherhood to the wider Islamic world can hardly sustain critical analysis. Quite surprisingly, most of the names mentioned, from Abū Bakr ʿAbd al-Razzāq (one of the sons of ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī) down to ʿAlī al-Ḥāšimī, Šaraf al-Dīn and Baḥr al-Dīn Aḥmad, correspond to the physical and spiritual genealogy of the Āl al-Ḡilānī al-Ḥamawī, the descendants of ʿAbd al-Qādir in the Syrian town of Ḥamā.²⁷

In particular, the nasab of this šarīf group almost literally confirms the section of the Ethiopian silsila/nasab: ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī –

al-sayyid Abū Bakr ‘Abd al-Razzāq – qādī al-qudāt al-sayyid Nāṣir (called al-Naṣr in the Syrian source) – al-šayḥ Abū al-Naṣr al-sayyid Muhammad – al-šayḥ Žahir al-Dīn al-sayyid Aḥmad – Sayf al-Dīn al-sayyid Yahyā. Sayf al-Dīn Yahyā (d. 734/1333-34) was the first member of the offspring of ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ǧilānī to settle in Ḥamā in 685/1286-87 on his way back from the haqqa (hence his nickname nazil Ḥamā) and from him the whole Āl Kīlānī group originated. The names from Sayf al-Dīn Yahyā back to al-sayyid ‘Alī al-Hāšimī are not completely identical in the Syrian nasab and in the Ethiopian silsila but the relatively slight discrepancies between the two texts can be easily explained with some disruptions in the transmission.28 The only really missing person in the Syrian nasab is Ibrāhīm al-Qādir who, however, could be an avatar of Ibrāhīm b. Šaraf al-Dīn b. Aḥmad b. ‘Alī al-Hāšimī who appears in the nasab of šayḥ ‘Abd al-Raḥmān al-Kīlānī, naqīb al-ašrāf in Damascus (d. ca. 1172/1758-59).29

As for sayyid Musāfir al-Mağiřībi, who should be the person who practically introduced the tarīqa into Ethiopia, he lays in complete obscurity: one can only speculate on his nisba which often is used in Ethiopia to refer to individuals coming or originating from Sudan. It is of course theoretically conceivable that this sayyid Musāfir al-Mağiřībi could have met a member of the Kīlānī family somewhere in the Near East or in the Arabian Peninsula and have been initiated to the Qādirī brotherhood by him. Such an event, however, would probably have been recorded in Ethiopian tradition with much emphasis. It is thus much more likely that sayyid Musāfir al-Mağiřībi is nothing but a ghost name functioning to connect the Near-eastern silsila with Ethiopia.

The Īqāẓ also contains a cursive mention of the line of Qādirī spiritual descendency initiated by šayḥ Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ. The silsila in this 29 How the Syrian nasab came to be known in Ethiopia so that Muḥammad Wale could insert it in his book as a silsila is not clear. A feedback from an Arabic written source is most likely but cannot be proven.

A short note on a silsila of the Qādiriyya

The case is:

This is once more the famous Anna-Dana silsila, already recorded by J. Spencer Trimingham and then studied by Hussein Ahmed.31 From the al-Dānī al-Ṭānī, the Ethiopian Qādiriyya apparently managed to spread widely in every corner of Ethiopia. Among the most famous disciples of the “second” al-Dānī ṣayḥ, Muḥammad Wale mentions:

al-ṣayḥ al-Sayyid b. al-sayyid Ṭālīb; ṣayḥ Abū al-Baṣṭ – ʿṣayḥ Mahmūd Kanz – ʿṣayḥ Šahīd al-Dār ṣayḥ al-Karamī who was, in his turn, master of al-ḥāǧǧ Muḥammad Zayn al-Dānī (the third Dānī).32

This local Ethiopian section of the silsila thus includes the names of the main representatives of the Qādiriyya of Wāllo in the recent past and today. It provides the standard chain of spiritual descent for the whole region, highlighting the pivotal role played by the Anna-Dana connection.

This is the only Ethiopian Qādirī silsila known so far. Other silsilas based on different Qādirī centres in Wāllo and/or in Harar which, for sure, exist are still to be discovered. Only further research on the written local tradition of the tarīqa will hopefully allow us to make a more detailed assessment of the network of the Qādiriyya in the whole region.
