Futūḥ al-buldān is a well-known work of al-Balāḏurī (d. 297/892), one of the most important Muslim historians who lived in the third century of hiǧra. The reference to classical Muslim historiography in the series’ title is coupled with the semantic spectrum of the Arabic root of the word fath. It refers to ‘military conquest,’ as well as to the ideas of to ‘open,’ ‘begin,’ and/or ‘reveal.’ Thus, the title of the series is a tribute to a great Muslim historian, but it also represents a synthesis of the ideological framework that underpins he series, which is to disclose pieces of history of Islamic societies.

The series aims at publishing original works with a multidisciplinary approach, in the field of Islamic history and culture, drawing connections between the past and the present. Futūḥ al-buldān will privilege case studies from areas and languages which are often – and questionably – regarded as ‘peripheral.’

A short note on a silsila of the Qādiriyya brotherhood in Ethiopia

Alessandro Gori
(University of Florence)

Introduction

In spite of a lack of exact and reliable information on the present distribution of the Islamic mystical brotherhoods in Ethiopia (and Eritrea), the Qādiriyya is the most widespread Islamic brotherhood, ṭarīqa, in the country.

In the present paper I carry out a brief research on a spiritual genealogy (silsila) of the Ethiopian Qādiriyya trying to shed light on the ways the ṭarīqa followed to spread in the different regions of Ethiopia, and to contribute to the reconstruction of the history of the group in that country.

1. The Qādiriyya in Ethiopia

‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ḡīlānī (m. 561/1166) is widely known and devotedly venerated in Ethiopia. His cenotaphs are scattered across the country, and mosques named after him are found in many different towns and villages. To mention only a few examples, in Harar, a famous maqâm of ‘Abd al-Qādir and his mother Umm al-Ḫayr Fāṭima (locally called Umma Koda) is located outside the wall of the old town (gugal), in the area known as Qurra-be limay just in front of the main bus-station. Eighteen kilometres east of Harar, in the Argobba land, a renowned sacred compound hosts the shrines of ‘Abd al-Qādir and Umma Koda with a house for the congregational meetings of the Qādiriyya brotherhood (hadra). Both locations are cherished holy sites to which the faithful of the Harar region flock in pilgrimage to seek the baraka of the saint and his mother. In Eritrea, a very famous shrine (mazār) of ‘Abd al-Qādir exists on the homonymous stretch of land north of Massawa and local traditions obviously claim that the saint actually died there. Emir ‘Abd al-Šakr b. Yusuf of Harar (d. 1794) had a mosque called ʿAbd al-Qādir al-Ǧilānī built near the shrine of šayḥ Ḥusayn in the south Ethiopian region of Bale. In Asmara a modern mosque with a maqâm perpetuates the memory of the eponymous of the Qādiriyya. ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ǧilānī is invoked in devotional poems and prayers

∗ The research on which this article is based was made possible thanks to the support of the Alexander von Humboldt Stiftung.

2 Unfortunately, no exhaustive list of the cenotaphs of ‘Abd al-Qādir in Ethiopia (and in the Horn) is available. There is no need to underline the interest and the importance that such a list could provide to clarify the dimensions of the cult of this saint in Northeastern Africa.

with the names of local Ethiopian holy men.\(^9\) The text collection recited during the mawlid ceremony in Harar contains a poem attributed to ‘Abd al-Qādir (Ṭuf bi-ḥālī sab‘an)\(^10\) and a long pious supplication to ask for his help (Yā quṭb yā rabbānī al-hayakal al-nūrānī ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ǧilānī). In many Ethiopian Muslim regions, famous Qādirī centres exist: Anna in Rayya Qobbo (Wällo), Dana in Yəğğu (Wällo), Qatbare in Qabeena\(^11\) and Galamssoo (Gälämso) in Oromia\(^12\) are among the most celebrated headquarters of the brotherhood and host famous Islamic schools which attract scholars and students to teach and study not only mysticism but the whole syllabus of the Islamic traditional education.\(^13\)

A number of Ethiopian Islamic renowned learned men were affiliated with the Qādiriya (e.g. Ǧamāl al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Annī, d. 1882; ʿĀḥmad b. ʿĀdīm al-Dānī, d. 1903; ʿĪsā b. Ḥāmza al-Qatbarī d. 1947, ‘Umar b. ʿĀlī al-Ǧalamsī, fl. first half of the 20th century) and contributed to enhance the influence and the prestige of the ʿṭarīqa.

Despite the apparent rooting of the brotherhood in the country, the history of the Qādiriya in Ethiopia has never been investigated by scholars and is therefore almost completely unknown. The ways the ʿṭarīqa followed in its spread into the different cultural and ethnical landscapes of Islamic Ethiopia are so far only vaguely describable. The reciprocal relationships of the various centres of the brotherhood are not precisely identifiable and the biographies of the Ethiopian qādirī masters can only be sketched. First-hand sources on the mystical group and its literature (manāqib, silsilas, handbooks of doctrine, litanies and devotional texts) are still to be located, collected and critically published.

\(^13\) The strict connection between the mystical brotherhoods and the Islamic traditional educational system in Ethiopia is well described by Hussein Ahmed, “Traditional Muslim Education in Wälło,” in Anatoly Andreevich Gromyko (ed.), Proceedings of the Ninth International Congress of Ethiopian Studies, vol. 3, Nauka, Moscow, 1988, pp. 94-106.
It is often repeated in scholarly literature\(^\text{14}\) that the first introducer of the \textit{Qādiriyya} in Ethiopia was Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-‘Aydrūs, the revered patron saint of Aden (d. 1508), member of the al-Saqqāf branch of the Ḥadrami Bā ‘Alawi \textit{sayyid}, who allegedly brought the \textit{ṭarīqa} to Harar. However, no evidence for this assertion has ever been shown yet.\(^\text{15}\) The first inception of the brotherhood remains thus still enshrouded in obscurity.

The late Hussein Ahmed was the first researcher to concretely contribute to the enhancement of our knowledge of the Ethiopian \textit{Qādiriyya}. While carrying out some field work in his native region, he came to know a local \textit{silsila} of the \textit{Qādiriyya} that sheds light on the spread of the brotherhood from Harar into Wällo in the 19th century.

The \textit{silsila} published by Hussein Ahmed runs as follows:

\begin{quote}
\textit{Sayyid} Musāfīr – \textit{faqīḥ} Hāšim – Ahmad b. Sāliḥ – \textit{faqīḥ} Zubayr – \textit{ṣayḥ} Muhammad Šāfi (d. 1814/15)\(^\text{16}\) – Muhammad b. \textit{faqīḥ} Zubayr – \textit{ṣayḥ} Ğamal al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Anni – Ahmad b. Ādam (d. 1903) – Muḥammad Yasin (d. 1924); \textit{sayyid} Ibrāhīm (d. 1956).\(^\text{17}\)
\end{quote}

According to Hussein Ahmed’s informants, \textit{sayyid} Musāfīr was of Yemeni origin\(^\text{18}\) and thus was a \textit{trait-d’union} between the local Ethiopian \textit{Qādiriyya} and the broader brotherhood network. He initiated to the \textit{Qādiri} \textit{wird} “a certain \textit{faqīḥ} Hāšim” of Harar who in his turn entrusted the \textit{ṭarīqa} to Ahmad b. Sāliḥ. The latter took the brother-

\(^{15}\) The personality of Abū Bakr b. ’Abd Allāh al-‘Aydrūs is still little known and deserves more in-depth research. He is credited to have introduced the habit of drinking coffee into Arabia. His connection with the \textit{Qādiriyya} is still unclear as some sources point instead to his affiliation to the Šāliyya (Oscar Löfgren, s.v. “‘Aydrūs,” in Clifford E. Bosworth et al. (eds.), \textit{The Encyclopaedia of Islam}, 2nd edition, Brill, Leiden 1960-2005).

\(^{16}\) On this figure see Hussein Ahmed, s.v. “Muḥammad Šāfi,” in \textit{EAE}.

\(^{18}\) Interviewed by Hussein Ahmed, \textit{ṣayḥ} Muḥammad Wale said that \textit{sayyid} Musāfīr came from a not well-specified “West” and that \textit{faqīḥ} Hāšim received the \textit{qādiri} \textit{wird} also “from an unknown ‘ālim from Medina” (Hussein Ahmed, \textit{Islam in Nineteenth-Century,} p. 69).
hood to Wällo where it took root in the entire region.

The spiritual genealogy collected by Hussein Ahmed provides us with at least two important pieces of information: 1) the Qādiriyya most probably arrived in Ethiopia from Yemen, although not through the intermediation of Abū Bakr b. ʿAbd Allāh al-ʿAydarūs, whose name appears nowhere; 2) the Qādiriyya came to Wällo through šayḥ Ṭāhī Ḍīzmī b. Śāriḥ among whose pupils also figured the much revered saint and learned man sayyid al-Bāʿ al-hāġ Ī Ṣaṣura b. Āy Muḥammad.19

Hussein Ahmed’s informants were not able to give further details on the personalities of the three oldest šayḥs mentioned in the silsila, so they remain nothing more than simple names. However, it is possible to identify with certainty faqīḥ Hāṣim with the Harari learned man and member of the Harari emir family Hāṣim b. ʿAbd al-ʿAzīz (d. 1765)20 who authored a much renowned Arabic collection of pious litanies and prayers in praise of the Prophet (called the Fatḥ al-Raḥmānī [sic!]), a wirḍ for the Qādiriyya brotherhood and a Harari poem, al-Muṣṭafā, known both in a shorter and a longer version.

2. Šayḥ Ṭāhī Ḍīzmī b. Śāriḥ and his silsila

Very recently, new evidence on the silsila of the Wällo Qādiriyya has 20 For some introductory information on him see Ewald Wagner, s.v. “Hāṣim b. ʿAbd al-ʿAzīz,” in EAE. The affiliation of faqīḥ Hāṣim to the Qādiriyya is proved by an unpublished silsila contained in the manuscript Hs. or. 10472 of the Staatsbibliothek in Berlin (see the description of the document in Ewald Wagner, Afrikanische Handschriften. Teil 2. Islamische Handschriften aus Äthiopien, “Verzeichnis der orientalischen Handschriften in Deutschland 24-2,” Steiner, Stuttgart 1997, pp. 10-11.

come into light. In Ramadan 1425 (Oct.-Nov. 2004)\(^\text{21}\) the Naḵši printing press, the main Islamic publishing house of the country based in Addis Ababa,\(^\text{22}\) published the Īqāz himam al-aḏbiyāʾ bi-raš ṣqrā min tarāḡīm al-ʿulamāʾ wa-al-awliyāʾ fi ǧumhūrīyyat ʿIyūbiyā, a collection of short biographies of holy men written by the renowned Wāllo šayḥ Muḥammad Wale.\(^\text{23}\)

Among the saints whose manāqib were published in the book there is also šayḥ Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ, trait d’union between the Harari and the Wāllo branches of the Qādirīyya. No factual detail about the life of šayḥ Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ is recorded in the short biographical note of the Īqāz.\(^\text{24}\) The sources of the information given in the book are not revealed. The dates of birth and death of the holy man remain unknown and the data about his genealogy are not ascertained. The fact that someone calls Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ “Aḥmad Kubrā” irritates the author/collector who deems it as a manifestation of coarse ignorance of the basic principles of the Arabic language.

Among the many prodigies which are commonly attributed to šayḥ Aḥmad, Muhammad Wale reports only a single karāma which he himself seems to consider unbelievable. It is said that Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ on his way to Yāḡģu where he was to give the iḡāza to faṣīḥ Zubayr, made a detour to Rayya. There, he noticed a girl who was playing with some boys. He stopped her and announced that she would give birth to someone who would renew his ḡīkr: she was actually the mother-to-be of šayḥ Gamāl al-Dīn Muḥammad al-ʿAnnī. Besides the general skepticism of the author about karāmāt, in this specific tale \(^{21}\) This is the date given on page 2 of the book. In the short biography of the author however, it is said that the text was published just a few days before his death (Sep. 10\(^\text{th}\) 2005).

\(^{24}\) Muhammad Wale, Īqāz himam al-aḏbiyāʾ", pp. 137-140.
Muhammad Wale stresses also a general theological inconsistency: it is highly questionable whether it is legitimate to give a sort of iğāza in absentia to someone who is not (yet) alive.²⁵

Notwithstanding its scanty amount of information, the section of the İqāz is very interesting because it records the complete sīlsila of Aḥmad b. Šāliḥ. The spiritual genealogy connecting šayḥ Aḥmad back to ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ǧīlānī runs as follows:

The reliability of the sīlsila linking the Ethiopian branch of the brotherhood to the wider Islamic world can hardly sustain critical analysis. Quite surprisingly, most of the names mentioned, from Abū Bakr ‘Abd al-Razzāq (one of the sons of ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ǧīlānī) down to ‘Alī al-Ḥāšimī, Ṣarāf al-Dīn and Baḥr al-Dīn Aḥmad, correspond to the physical and spiritual genealogy of the Āl al-Ǧīlānī al-Ḥamawī, the descendants of ‘Abd al-Qādir in the Syrian town of Ḥamā.²⁷

In particular, the nasab of this šarīf group almost literally confirms the section of the Ethiopian sīlsila/nasab: ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ǧīlānī – al-sayyid Abū Bakr ‘Abd al-Razzāq – qādī al-qudāt al-sayyid Nāṣir (called al-Naṣr in the Syrian source) – al-ṣayḥ Abū al-Naṣr al-sayyid Muhammad – al-ṣayḥ ‘Alī al-Dīn al-sayyid Aḥmad – Sayf al-Dīn al-sayyid Yahyā. Sayf al-Dīn Yahyā (d. 734/1333-34) was the first member of the offspring of ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ǧilānī to settle in Ḥamā in 685/1286-87 on his way back from the haqq (hence his nickname nazīl Ḥamā) and from him the whole Āl Kilānī group originated. The names from Sayf al-Dīn Yahyā back to al-sayyid ‘Alī al-Ǧilānī are not completely identical in the Syrian nasab and in the Ethiopian silsila but the relatively slight discrepancies between the two texts can be easily explained with some disruptions in the transmission. The only really missing person in the Syrian nasab is Ibrāhīm al-Qādir who, however, could be an avatar of Ibrāhīm b. Šaraf al-Dīn b. Aḥmad b. ‘Alī al-Ǧilānī who appears in the nasab of šayḥ ‘Abd al-Raḥmān al-Kilānī, naqīb al-aṣrāf in Damascus (d. ca. 1172/1758-59).

As for sayyid Musāfir al-Mağiřī, who should be the person who practically introduced the tarīqa into Ethiopia, he lays in complete obscurity: one can only speculate on his nīsha which often is used in Ethiopia to refer to individuals coming or originating from Sudan. It is of course theoretically conceivable that this sayyid Musāfir al-Mağiřī could have met a member of the Kilānī family somewhere in the Near East or in the Arabian Peninsula and have been initiated to the Qādirī brotherhood by him. Such an event, however, would probably have been recorded in Ethiopian tradition with much emphasis. It is thus much more likely that sayyid Musāfir al-Mağiřī is nothing but a ghost name functioning to connect the Near-eastern silsila with Ethiopia.

The Ḩaqāẓ also contains a cursive mention of the line of Qādirī spiritual descendency initiated by šayḥ Aḥmad b. Śāliḥ. The silsila in this 29 How the Syrian nasab came to be known in Ethiopia so that Muḥammad Wale could insert it in his book as a silsila is not clear. A feedback from an Arabic written source is most likely but cannot be proven.

case is:

This is once more the famous Anna-Dana silsila, already recorded by J. Spencer Trimingham and then studied by Hussei n Ahmed.31 From the al-Ḍañī al-Ṭānī, the Ethiopian Qādiriyyya apparently managed to spread widely in every corner of Ethiopia. Among the most famous disciples of the “second” al-Ḍañī ṣayḥ, Muḥammad Wale mentions:

al-ṣayḥ al-Sayyid b. al-sayyid Ibrāhīm al-Ṭālī; ṣayḥ Abū al-Baṣṭ – ṣayḥ Mahmūd Kanz – ṣayḥ Ṣāḥib al-Dār ṣayḥ al-Karamī who was, in his turn, master of al-ḥāḡg Muḥammad Zayn al-Ḍañī (the third Danī).32

This local Ethiopian section of the silsila thus includes the names of the main representatives of the Qādiriyyya of Wāllo in the recent past and today. It provides the standard chain of spiritual descent for the whole region, highlighting the pivotal role played by the Anna-Dana connection.

This is the only Ethiopian Qādirī silsila known so far. Other silsilas based on different Qādirī centres in Wāllo and/or in Harar which, for sure, exist are still to be discovered. Only further research on the written local tradition of the tarīqa will hopefully allow us to make a more detailed assessment of the network of the Qādiriyyya in the whole region.
