_Futūḥ al-buldān_ is a well-known work of al-Balāḏurī (d. 297/892), one of the most important Muslim historians who lived in the third century of hiǧra. The reference to classical Muslim historiography in the series’ title is coupled with the semantic spectrum of the Arabic root of the word _fath_. It refers to ‘military conquest,’ as well as to the ideas of to ‘open,’ ‘begin,’ and/or ‘reveal.’ Thus, the title of the series is a tribute to a great Muslim historian, but it also represents a synthesis of the ideological framework that underpins the series, which is to disclose pieces of history of Islamic societies.

The series aims at publishing original works with a multidisciplinary approach, in the field of Islamic history and culture, drawing connections between the past and the present. _Futūḥ al-buldān_ will privilege case studies from areas and languages which are often – and questionably – regarded as ‘peripheral.’

A short note on a silṣila of the Ḥādirīyya brotherhood in Ethiopia*

Alessandro Gori
(University of Florence)

Introduction

In spite of a lack of exact and reliable information on the present distribution of the Islamic mystical brotherhoods in Ethiopia (and Eritrea), the Ḥādirīyya is the most widespread Islamic brotherhood, ṭarīqa, in the country. In the present paper I carry out a brief research on a spiritual genealogy (silṣila) of the Ethiopian Ḥādirīyya trying to shed light on the ways the ṭarīqa followed to spread in the different regions of Ethiopia, and to contribute to the reconstruction of the history of the group in that country.

1. The Ḥādirīyya in Ethiopia

ʿAbd al-Ḡādir al-Ḡīlānī (m. 561/1166) is widely known and devotedly venerated in Ethiopia. His cenotaphs are scattered across the country, and mosques named after him are found in many different towns and

1 The Somali Ḥādirīyya is, on the contrary, relatively well known (see Alessandro Gori, Studi sulla letteratura agiografica islamica somala in lingua araba, Dipartimento di Linguistica, Firenze 2003, in particular pp. 28-32).
villages.\(^2\) To mention only a few examples, in Harar, a famous \textit{maqām} of ‘Abd al-Qādir and his mother Umm al-Ḥayr Fāṭima (locally called Umma Koda)\(^3\) is located outside the wall of the old town (ḡugal), in the area known as \textit{Qurra-be limay} just in front of the main bus-station.\(^4\) Eighteen kilometres east of Harar, in the Argobba land, a renowned sacred compound hosts the shrines of ‘Abd al-Qādir and Umma Koda with a house for the congregational meetings of the Qādiriyya brotherhood (\textit{ḥadra}).\(^5\) Both locations are cherished holy sites to which the faithful of the Harar region flock in pilgrimage to seek the \textit{baraka} of the saint and his mother. In Eritrea, a very famous shrine (\textit{mazār}) of ‘Abd al-Qādir exists on the homonymous stretch of land north of Massawa and local traditions obviously claim that the saint actually died there.\(^6\) Emir ‘Abd al-Šakur b. Yūsuf of Harar (d. 1794) had a mosque called ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ǧilānī built near the shrine of šayḫ Ḥusayn in the south Ethiopian region of Bale.\(^7\) In Asmara a modern mosque with a \textit{maqām} perpetuates the memory of the eponymous of the Qādiriya.\(^8\)

\(^{2}\) Unfortunately, no exhaustive list of the cenotaphs of ‘Abd al-Qādir in Ethiopia (and in the Horn) is available. There is no need to underline the interest and the importance that such a list could provide to clarify the dimensions of the cult of this saint in Northeastern Africa.

with the names of local Ethiopian holy men. The text collection recited during the mawlid ceremony in Harar contains a poem attributed to ‘Abd al-Qādir (Tuf bi-ḥalī sab’an) and a long pious supplication to ask for his help (Yā qūb yā rabbānī al-haykal al-nūrānī ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Gīlānī). In many Ethiopian Muslim regions, famous Qādirī centres exist: Anna in Rayya Qobbo (Wällo), Dana in Yaggū (Wällo), Qatbare in Qabeena and Galamssoo (Gälämso) in Oromia are among the most celebrated headquarters of the brotherhood and host famous Islamic schools which attract scholars and students to teach and study not only mysticism but the whole syllabus of the Islamic traditional education.

A number of Ethiopian Islamic renowned learned men were affiliated with the Qādiriyā (e.g. Ġamāl al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Annī, d. 1882; Ahmad b. Ādam al-Dānī, d. 1903; ‘Īsā b. Ḥamza al-Qatbarī d. 1947, ‘Umar b. ‘Alī al-Ġalamsī, fl. first half of the 20th century) and contributed to enhance the influence and the prestige of the ṭarīqa.

Despite the apparent rooting of the brotherhood in the country, the history of the Qādiriyā in Ethiopia has never been investigated by scholars and is therefore almost completely unknown. The ways the ṭarīqa followed in its spread into the different cultural and ethnical landscapes of Islamic Ethiopia are so far only vaguely describable. The reciprocal relationships of the various centres of the brotherhood are not precisely identifiable and the biographies of the Ethiopian qādirī masters can only be sketched. First-hand sources on the mystical group and its literature (manāqīb, silsilas, handbooks of doctrine, litanies and devotional texts) are still to be located, collected and critically published.

It is often repeated in scholarly literature\textsuperscript{14} that the first introducer of the \textit{Qādiriyā} in Ethiopia was Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-‘Aydarūs, the revered patron saint of Aden (d. 1508), member of the al-Saqqāf branch of the Ḥadrami Bā ‘Alawi sayyid, who allegedly brought the \textit{tariqa} to Harar. However, no evidence for this assertion has ever been shown yet.\textsuperscript{15} The first inception of the brotherhood remains thus still enshrouded in obscurity.

The late Hussein Ahmed was the first researcher to concretely contribute to the enhancement of our knowledge of the Ethiopian \textit{Qādiriyā}. While carrying out some field work in his native region, he came to know a local \textit{silsila} of the \textit{Qādiriyā} that sheds light on the spread of the brotherhood from Harar into Wällo in the 19\textsuperscript{th} century.

The \textit{silsila} published by Hussein Ahmed runs as follows:

\textit{Sayyid Musāfir – faqīh Hāšīm – Ahmad b. Šāliḥ – faqīh Zubayr – šaykh Muhammad Šāfi (d. 1814/15)}\textsuperscript{16} – Muhammad b. faqīh Zubayr – šaykh Ġamal al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Anī – Ahmad b. Ġādum (d. 1903) – Muḥammad Yasin (d. 1924); \textit{sayyid} Ģibrāhīm (d. 1956).\textsuperscript{17}

According to Hussein Ahmed’s informants, \textit{sayyid} Musāfir was of Yemeni origin\textsuperscript{18} and thus was a \textit{trait-d’union} between the local Ethiopian \textit{Qādiriyā} and the broader brotherhood network. He initiated to the \textit{Qādiri} \textit{wirid} “a certain faqīh Hāshīm” of Harar who in his turn entrusted the \textit{tariqa} to Ahmad b. Šāliẖ. The latter took the brother-

\textsuperscript{15} The personality of Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-‘Aydarūs is still little known and deserves more in-depth research. He is credited to have introduced the habit of drinking coffee into Arabia. His connection with the \textit{Qādiriyā} is still unclear as some sources point instead to his affiliation to the \textit{Ṣaḥīḥyya} (Oscar Löfgren, s.v. “‘Aydarūs,” in Clifford E. Bosworth et al. (eds.), \textit{The Encyclopaedia of Islam}, 2\textsuperscript{nd} edition, Brill, Leiden 1960-2005).

\textsuperscript{18} Interviewed by Hussein Ahmed, šaykh Muhammad Wale said that \textit{sayyid} Musāfir came from a not well-specified “West” and that faqīh Hāšīm received the \textit{qādiri} \textit{wirid} also “from an unknown ‘ālim from Medina” (Hussein Ahmed, \textit{Islam in Nineteenth-Century}, p. 69).
A short note on a silsila of the Qadiryya hood to Wällo where it took root in the entire region.

The spiritual genealogy collected by Hussein Ahmed provides us with at least two important pieces of information: 1) the Qadiryya most probably arrived in Ethiopia from Yemen, although not through the intermediation of Abū Bakr b. ‘Abd Allāh al-‘Aydarūs, whose name appears nowhere; 2) the Qadiryya came to Wällo through šayḥ Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ among whose pupils also figured the much revered saint and learned man sayyid al-Bā’ al-hāǧǧ Buṣrā b. Ğy Muḥammad.19

Hussein Ahmed’s informants were not able to give further details on the personalities of the three oldest šayḥs mentioned in the silsila, so they remain nothing more than simple names. However, it is possible to identify with certainty faqīḥ Ḥāṣim with the Harari learned man and member of the Harari emir family Ḥāṣim b. ‘Abd al-‘Azīz (d. 1765)20 who authored a much renowned Arabic collection of pious litanies and prayers in praise of the Prophet (called the Fath al-Raḥmānī [sic!]), a wird for the Qadiryya brotherhood and a Harari poem, al-Muṣṭafā, known both in a shorter and a longer version.

2. Šayḥ Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ and his silsila

Very recently, new evidence on the silsila of the Wällo Qadiryya has 20 For some introductory information on him see Ewald Wagner, s.v. “Ḥāṣim b. ‘Abd al-‘Azīz,” in EAE. The affiliation of faqīḥ Ḥāṣim to the Qadiryya is proved by an unpublished silsila contained in the manuscript Hs. or. 10472 of the Staatsbibliothek in Berlin (see the description of the document in Ewald Wagner, Afrikanische Handschriften. Teil 2. Islamische Handschriften aus Äthiopien, “Verzeichnis der orientalischenHandschriften in Deutschland 24-2,” Steiner, Stuttgart 1997, pp. 10-11.

come into light. In Ramadan 1425 (Oct.-Nov. 2004) the Nağāšī printing press, the main Islamic publishing house of the country based in Addis Ababa, published the İqz̄ım himam al-ağbiyya’ bi-raṣḥ qātra min tarāğim al-’ulamā’ wa-al-awliyā’ fi ǧumhūriyyat ʿIyūbiyya, a collection of short biographies of holy men written by the renowned Wällo šayḫ Muḥammad Wale.

Among the saints whose manāqib were published in the book there is also šayḫ Aḥmad b. Šāliḥ, trait d’union between the Harari and the Wällo branches of the Qādiriyya. No factual detail about the life of šayḥ Aḥmad b. Šāliḥ is recorded in the short biographical note of the İqz̄ım. The sources of the information given in the book are not revealed. The dates of birth and death of the holy man remain unknown and the data about his genealogy are not ascertained. The fact that someone calls Aḥmad b. Šāliḥ “Aḥmad Kubrā” irritates the author/collector who deems it as a manifestation of coarse ignorance of the basic principles of the Arabic language.

Among the many prodigies which are commonly attributed to šayḥ Aḥmad, Muḥammad Wale reports only a single karāma which he himself seems to consider unbelievable. It is said that Aḥmad b. Šāliḥ on his way to Yəḡ̄gu where he was to give the ʾiğ̄za to faṣīḥ Zubayr, made a detour to Rayya. There, he noticed a girl who was playing with some boys. He stopped her and announced that she would give birth to someone who would renew his ǧikr: she was actually the mother-to-be of šayḥ Gamāl al-Dīn Muḥammad al-Annī. Besides the general skepticism of the author about karāmāt, in this specific tale 24 Muḥammad Wale, İqz̄ım himam al-ağbiyya’”, pp. 137-140.

Muhammad Wale stresses also a general theological inconsistency: it is highly questionable whether it is legitimate to give a sort of iǧāza in absentia to someone who is not (yet) alive.

Notwithstanding its scanty amount of information, the section of the Iqāz is very interesting because it records the complete silsila of Aḥmad b. Ṣāliḥ. The spiritual genealogy connecting šayḥ Aḥmad back to ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī runs as follows:

The reliability of the silsila linking the Ethiopian branch of the brotherhood to the wider Islamic world can hardly sustain critical analysis. Quite surprisingly, most of the names mentioned, from Abū Bakr ‘Abd al-Razzāq (one of the sons of ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī) down to ‘Alī al-Hāšimī, Šaraf al-Dīn and Baḥr al-Dīn Aḥmad, correspond to the physical and spiritual genealogy of the Āl al-Kīlānī al-Ḥamawī, the descendants of ‘Abd al-Qādir in the Syrian town of Ḥamā.

In particular, the nasab of this šarīf group almost literally confirms the section of the Ethiopian silsila/nasab: ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī –

\[\text{Ibidem, p. 139.}\]
\[\text{Ibidem, pp. 137-138. The text contains also the standard silsila connecting 'Abd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī to the Prophet through Ḥasan al- Başrī and 'Allī b. Abī Ṭālib (on which see Angelo Scarabel, “Considerazioni su silsila e genealogia in 'Abd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī,” Rivista degli Studi Orientali, 51, 1977, pp. 77-98).} \]
\[\text{The text is a concise but comprehensive research on the various branches of the descendants of the Prophet Muḥammad in the Near East.}\]
al-sayyid Abū Bakr ‘Abd al-Razzāq – qāḍī al-quḍāt al-sayyid Nāṣir (called al-Naṣr in the Syrian source) – al-šayḥ Abū al-Naṣr al-sayyid Muhammad – al-šayḥ Zahīr al-Dīn al-sayyid Aḥmad – Sayf al-Dīn al-sayyid Yahyā. Sayf al-Dīn Yahyā (d. 734/1333-34) was the first member of the offspring of ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ḡilānī to settle in Ḥamā in 685/1286-87 on his way back from the haǧǧ (hence his nickname nazīl Ḥamā) and from him the whole Āl Kīlānī group originated. The names from Sayf al-Dīn Yahyā back to al-sayyid ‘Alī al-Hāšimī are not completely identical in the Syrian nasab and in the Ethiopian silsila but the relatively slight discrepancies between the two texts can be easily explained with some disruptions in the transmission.28 The only really missing person in the Syrian nasab is Ibrāhīm al-Qādiri who, however, could be an avatar of Ibrāhīm b. Šaraf al-Dīn b. Aḥmad b. ‘Alī al-Hāšimī who appears in the nasab of šayḥ ‘Abd al-Raḥmān al-Kīlānī, naqīb al-ašrāf in Damascus (d. ca. 1172/1758-59).29

As for sayyid Musāfīr al-Maġribī, who should be the person who practically introduced the tariqa into Ethiopia, he lays in complete obscurity: one can only speculate on his nisba which often is used in Ethiopia to refer to individuals coming or originating from Sudan. It is of course theoretically conceivable that this sayyid Musāfīr al-Maġribī could have met a member of the Kīlānī family somewhere in the Near East or in the Arabian Peninsula and have been initiated to the Qādirī brotherhood by him. Such an event, however, would probably have been recorded in Ethiopian tradition with much emphasis. It is thus much more likely that sayyid Musāfīr al-Maģribī is nothing but a ghost name functioning to connect the Near-eastern silsila with Ethiopia.

The Īqāz also contains a cursive mention of the line of Qādirī spiritual descendency initiated by šayḥ Aḥmad b. Šāliḥ. The silsila in this 29 How the Syrian nasab came to be known in Ethiopia so that Muhammad Wale could insert it in his book as a silsila is not clear. A feedback from an Arabic written source is most likely but cannot be proven.

case is:

This is once more the famous Anna-Dana sīlsila, already recorded by J. Spencer Trimingham and then studied by Hussein Ahmed.31 From the al-Danī al-Ţānī, the Ethiopian Qādiriyya apparently managed to spread widely in every corner of Ethiopia. Among the most famous disciples of the “second” al-Danī šayḥ, Muḥammad Wale mentions:

al-šayḥ al-Sayyid b. al-sayyīd Ibrāhīm al-Ţālī; šayḥ Abū al-Baṣṭ – šayḥ Mahmūd Kanz – šayḥ Šāhīd al-Dār šayḥ al-Karamī who was, in his turn, master of al-ḥāǧǧ Muḥammad Zayn al-Danī (the third Danī).32

This local Ethiopian section of the sīlsila thus includes the names of the main representatives of the Qādiriyya of Wāllo in the recent past and today. It provides the standard chain of spiritual descent for the whole region, highlighting the pivotal role played by the Anna-Dana connection.

This is the only Ethiopian Qādirī sīlsila known so far. Other sīlsilas based on different Qādirī centres in Wāllo and/or in Harar which, for sure, exist are still to be discovered. Only further research on the written local tradition of the tarīqa will hopefully allow us to make a more detailed assessment of the network of the Qādiriyya in the whole region.
